More Complications. The political situation in New York state was still further complicated last night by the failure of the Democratic state committee to nom inate a candidate for chief justice of the court of appeals. As stated in the call, the committee was called to order for the purpose of nominating a chief justice, and the fact that this was not done was a surprise to the unin-

It was understood that the nomination was to fall on Judge Rufus W. Peckham, but it is probable that the action of the County Democracy on Thursday night, when it declared for independent local nominations, so incensed the state com-mittee that it altered its determination or at least postponed the nomination until assured that the third ticket idea had been abandoned. It is also stated that the failure to nominate was due to the opposition of Hugh McLaughlin, who has a candidate in the person of William C. De-Witt of Brooklyn.

Earle, or, possibly, Judge Isaac Maynard, and the postponement of a nomination was for the purpose of giving the anti-snappers time to consider the situation. A committee consisting of W. The three committeemen were opposed to Clayeland's population at Chief.

No Third Ticket ticket are stronger than ever. Although no action was taken further than the adoption of the report of the committee QUINCY. appointed last Friday to meet Chairman Harrity and Messrs. Dickinson, Quincy and Smalley of the Democratic national committee, there was much speech-making n favor of a third ticket.

The report of the conference committee, after detailing the history of its appointment, was as follows: The chairman of your committee stated the surpose of your committee's visit in the language of the resolution of its appointment. In reply to the request contained in such statement, the chairman of the sub-committee informed this committee that, in the opinion of the sub-committee, the most useful means to be adopted by the organization represented by your committee were the systematic organiz-ation of campaign clubs or associations in every district of the city, and thorough canvassing of the vote in each district, the holding of public meetings and parades and the dissemina-tion of a correct understanding among all classes of voters on the questions of issue.

The chairman of your committee asked the chairman of the sub-committee whether the chairman of the sub-committee whether the national committee desired at this time to add any further detailed suggestion to the general suggestion above specified, to which the chairman of the sub-committee made no reply, being interrupted by Mr. Dickinson of the sub-committee, who said that the sub-committee would be very glad to hear any suggestions on that subject matter from your committee, to which the chairman of your committee replied that the committee had committee replied that the committee had nothing further in the way of suggestions to make upon the subjects included within the imit of our resolution and the committee's instructions.

The conference upon the subject matter of the resolutions then closed. After hearing and adopting the foregoing report, the committee was continued for the purpose of further conferences with other organizations and the meeting adjourned intil next Friday night, when the antisnappers will hear a further report from

Immediately after their departure a delegation of the New York state committee arrived, and matters pertaining to the state campaign were discussed. The chief topic of discussion was the proposed third ticket of the County Democracy. It was urgently recommended that Mr. Cleveland influence the abrogation of

It would be an easy matter for a man disposed to set fire to a building to keep his eye on the set fire to a building to keep his eye on the officer and when he had disappeared to DRESS and GARMENT MAKING, begin his devilish work, knowing full well that it will be an hour or two before he will come that way again. Before that hour or two has passed a man could set a fire and be able to get away from the scene before the fire would be discovered. An Interesting Debate by the Irish National League.

A large assembly gathered at Cahill's members of the Irish National League on 'Capital and Labor." Mr. John Cavanagh.

Said: The labor trouble, as you call it in Quincy, is settled, but how long will Park, Milton, and Quincy. they continue to keep it settled? Are not the manufacturers laborers as well as the men? Is it not labor fighting labor, these strikes and lockouts?

Water is water and nothing will consume water except fire. Fire is fire and nothing will consume it but water. Take care: When you say you are hurting the capitalists, you are not, but simply the manufacturers. Brains are labor and will rear upon a man as well as anything else.

The people at large should not form a versa, because it is only labor fighting labor. But if you form unions that will co-operate with the manufacturers then you will gain some benefit, but the unions this, they have been, endeavoring to see who would beat the other.

Let the manufacturers have a standing committee and let the unions do the same, and allow these two to settle all disputes. DESERTS THE REPUBLICANS. Judge Gresham Announces His Intention of Voting for Cleveland

The announcement was made Saturday on the authority of Judge Allen, who has been sitting delegates, representing Weymouth, Brain- with Judge Gresham at Springfield. Judge tree, Holbrook, Randolph, Canton, Hyde Gresham said there need be no secret about it, and Judge Allen accordingly made the matter public. Yesterday the news was fully confirmed and created considerable excitement among both Demo- Pennsylvanians Feel Relieved by the crats and Republicans.

Owing to his position on the bench, Mr. Gresham refused to be interviewed. Judge Tree, however, talked freely. "Judge Gresham told me himself," said Mr. Tree, that he would vote for Mr. Cleveland this fall. I don't think he is actuated by personal reasons. He believes that the tariff is all wrong, and for that reason cannot longer vote with the Republican party. His sympathies are with the people, and ne beneves that the Republican party is now simply an organization in the interest of trusts and m onopolists that oppose the people.

"His accession to the Democracy will have a powerful effect on the election in the western states, especially in Indiana, where Judge Gresham is the idol of fully half the Republicans. Harrison carried the state in 1888 by only 3000 majority, and we have all along figured that his unpopularity at home would give the state to Cleveland this year. Now that Judge Gresham has forsaken the Republicans, the state may be counted as for Cleveland beyond a doubt."

tains would never capture the gang, and second Saturday prior to the election (Oct. they changed their tactics. George Fisher, 29). a United States secret service detective from Hagerstown, Md.; Frank Pegg of Uniontown, Policeman Hartley of Fairchance and others have been quietly lying about the neighborhood for the past three weeks. They observed that the gang came down from their mountain retreat to old man Cooley's every Sunday for three weeks and amused themselves playing cards and drinking.

The sheriff concluded that they would do this again yesterday, and prepared to make a capture. Early in the morning Sheriff McCormick and a few deputies from here slipped out quietly to Fair-chance before daylight to avoid the spies of the gang, and joined the watchers in the field. Frank Cooley and Jack Ramsey, two of the most daring in the gang, came riding down to the Cooley house about noon, and in the afternoon went back of the house into a field which had been lately cleared of timber and was ful of stumps. When the sheriff's party came down on them, Ramsey and Cooley were both half lying and half sitting against stumps, with Their Winchesters Beside Them.

Sheriff McCormick was in advance, and while some distance off Cooley spied him. He and Ramsey fired five times at the sheriff without getting up, but all their bullets missed him.

The sheriff had meanwhile taken refuge behind a tree, and from this place fired the ball that pierced Cockey's heart, as he lay against the stump, killing him instantly. A number of shots were fired at the outlaws by other members of the sher iff's posse. Ramsey started off on a run as soon as he thought that his chief was killed, with some of the sheriff's party at his heels, racing after him and firing as he ran, but he got away.

Coroner Holbert of Fairchance was summoned, and held an inquest on the body of the dead outlaw, and he now lies at the home of his father. The greates excitement prevails at the southern end of the county, and a feeling of relief is felt over the death of the outlaw leader. Non of the sheriff's party have returned, being still on the hunt for Ramsey.

A Suicide Discloses the Existence of a Suicide Club in Gotham. NEW YORK, Oct. 4.-J. B. Moorehead, a theatrical manager, 21 years old, was found dead in his bed yesterday afternoon, he having committed suicide by shooting himself in the left breast. A letter addressed to the coroner was opened by that official, who was somewhat staggered by its contents. Here is

Coroner of New York city:

J. B. Moorrhead. The coroner learned that Nestor Lennon, an actor, could probably explain the curious epistle he had received. Lennon was summoned and told the coroner that there was a suicide club in the city. Moorehead, he said, was a member, and he also belonged to it. He said that was the reason Moorehead shot himself and added that the dead man was compelled to do it. In speaking of the workings of the club Lennon said: "Each member, on joining is compelled to fix the data at oining, is compelled to fix the date at which they are to take their own life. Moorehead's hour had arrived. By a special rule of the club he was offered a ten year parole, but he refused to accept it, being determined to keep his agreement."

Employes Threaten to Make Trouble for Cincinnati Street Car Lines. CINCINNATI, Oct. 4.-There is a threatened strike among the street railroad motormen, linemen and electricians. Many of the cars on the Eden Park electric,

Colerain Avenue electric, East End electric and Avondale electric roads were visited yesterday by men formerly employed by the Eden Park line, who stated their grievances and urged the motormen to go out with them on a general strike. The electricians who have been employed on the Eden Park line formerly received $2.25 a day for twelve hours' work, six days constituting a week's work. For all overtime they received 25 cents an hour. Saturday night, when the linemen went to receive their wages, they were told that another for the council. in the future they would be paid at the rate of $1.65 a day, and that they would be required to work on Sundays and at night when required, without extra pay. The men took their last week's pay, and seven immediately resigned. Yesterday nine more handed in their resignations. The others held a meeting and decided to refuse to accept the reduction, and would demand increased pay.

Bank Wrecker Dann Dies on the Day He Was to Have Been Tried. BUFFALO, Oct. 4.-Edward S. Dann died last evening at his home on Delaware avenue. He was to have been tried in the supreme court yesterday on sixteen indictments, charging him with perjury, obbery and forgery, in wrecking the National Savings bank of Buffalo. The death of the notorious defaulter has created a sensation here, and the generally accepted theory as to the nature of the ous illness is that Dann committed suicide, taking a heavy dose of morphine, or some other poison. The physicians who attended him declare, on the contrary, they believe that he suffered a transport of the suffered a transport of the suffered a transport of the same time good business women. MR. FOULKE OUT FOR CLEVELAND.

David Martin Not Afraid of Democratic Newspaper Attacks.

NEW YORK, Oct. 4. - The convention of the New York State League of Democratic clubs drew a big crowd to Chickering hall yesterday. Most of the persons in attendance, in addition to the delegates, were attracted to the place in the hope of seeing and hearing ex-President Cleve-

The convention was called to order by John Boyd Thacher, president of the league. He was received with applause, and his reference to the growth and the work of the league called forth an enthusiastic demonstration.

The attendance was smaller than had been anticipated. The limitation of representation being three delegates from every 100 members, it was anticipated that there would be nearly 3000 delegates present, but the actual attendance did not reach one-sixth of that number.

Mr. Thacher introduced as permanent presiding officer of the convention, Hon. man with a military air, looking as bold William Sulzer of New York. In his answer, Mr. Callahan denies that any partnership existed between Canaday and Houghton, and avers that Houghton was not a man of means and had not at any time such a sum of money as he said at the time of the suicide was appropriated by Canaday. Affidavits are appended to the answer to show that Houghton badgered and worried Canaday, and that the only business relations between the two men concerned a company for the manufacture of a button-hole machine. The intimation is made that some sensational developments will be heard.

The Republican party is against the return to the state bank circulation. We have today gold, silver and paper money each equal to the other. In every business country in the world it is worth 100 cents to the dollar, and worth that every day in the year.

We have had all the Confederate currency that we want. We not only stand up for our industries and our labor and insist that they duced Mr. Cleveland. At the mention of the ex-president's name the convention It was several minutes before order dition to the 1570.

I challenge the judgment of the candid and intelligent business man of Boston, whatever their gent business man of Boston, whatever their politics, on the proposition that those changes, if actually carried out by the Democratic party, as they are demanded by the Demo-cratic platform, would prove for a year or two, at any rate, the greatest and most dangerous shock to business since the war.

That the Democratic party demands these hanges everybody knows. But something has changes everybody knows. But something has happened. Since last Tuesday they have been demoralized and almost on the run. The letter of acceptance discloses a figure which our aboriginal friends of the far west would describe as "Big Man Afraid of His Platform," and the party gazes in perplexity and alarm on a capidate who accepts its nomination. on a candidate who accepts its nomination, but has not yet shown either the candor to accept or the courage to

Mr. Reid stated briefly the achievements of the Republican party, and then, in substance, said:

At every step in this magnificent march it was resisted, in whole or in part, by the Democratic party, which resists it now. At every step it was substained by the brawn and brain, by the men and money of Massachusetts. There are those who say Massachusetts will resist it now. I do not believe the aspersion.

The Republican party is now in power. The country is peaceful, contented and prosperous beyond precedent. Shall we thereupon make a radical and sweeping change? If so, why? try in America. We used to have only eleven button factories, but now we have fifty-eight; we are making woolen and cotton goods in Up to Tuesday last our opponents openly and Texas, the home of Mills, and we are mak-

These professions embody the purest patriotism and the loftiest aspira-tions of American citizenship. Though at times they should suggest to us the strongest obligation to political effort, their motive force, an incentive to political activity and watchfulness, should be irresistible at a time when the constitution is held in light esteem as against the accomplishment of selfish purposes, when state bound-aries are hardly a barrier to centralized power, and when local self-government and freedom of elections are

To those who hope for better things this convention of Democratic clubs is a bright promise of reform. Unorganized good inten-tions and idle patriotic aspirations cannot successfully contend for mastery with the ompact forces of private interests and gree nor is the organization always the mos useful which has the widest extent. Th real benefit of political organization is found in its nearness to the people, and in the directness of its action. Of course, harmony and unity of purpose are absolutely essential. In this view, your assembling together is most important, in so far as it prootes this harmony and unity by conference and a consideration of methods, and in so far as it inspires that zeal and enthusiasm which will make more effective your work at home Therefore, I am sure that I can say nothing better in taking my leave of you than to wish that your convention may be a profitable and encouraging one, and that, at its conclusion, you may resume your places in your home organizations, newly inspired to determined OF STOCK AT MARKET.

Granite Trouble at Barre.

Everything is not serene in Barre, Vt. local granite dealers, says the Herald, that por the cutters have broken their agreement in two ways-first, in discriminating against firms having no journeymen tool sharpners, and, second, in not leaving the present trouble to arbitration, as provided for in the new agreement.

Union cutters are leaving sheds where there are only apprentice tool sharpeners, one dealer losing ten cutters today.

The dealers say that the new agreement dates back, and that the conditions existing when the agreement was signed not provided for in the agreement still remain. The cutters claim the right to leave a shed when they desire as individual worknen. Dealers having no journeymen sharpeners have had no opportunity to engage cutters this week. The union assessed cutters 50 cents a day.

The report was adopted, and the temorary organization was made permanent. It was voted that delegations be allowed five minutes each in which to present audidates for the nomination of Senator. Gen. Carrington, in behalf of the Hyde Park delegation, presented the name of

An Informal Ballot.

Upon motion of B. S. Lovell of Weymouth, a committee of five to receive, sort and count ballots was appointed, and the convention proceeded to an informal ballot. It resulted as follows:

> Ballot after ballot followed each other in rapid succession but with no material change. The Randolph delegation of two made all the changes up to the thirteenth ballot. First they were with Cook, then divided between Wyman and Woodsum, but never for Merrill.

A recess of ten minutes after the 9th for mal ballot did not change a vote. On the 13th Woodsum lost one to Wy-

Then Mr. Wyman's star was in the zenith for two ballots, but Mr. Cook overhauled him in the 25th and again went ahead.

There was an occasional illegal ballot, always attributed to carelessness, and now and then a short recess. Mr. Cook had 13 votes on the 34th and 35th, but on the 36th he was one of the low men with Mr. Merrill and Mr. Wyman tied for first place.

On the 37th Cook led, on the next two Wyman, and then Mr. Merrill for four, the latter getting his highest vote, 13. A new leader appeared on the 43d Mr.

Mr. Merrill was on top in the 45th and made further gains, lacking only two votes on the 46th and 49th.

Messrs. Cook and Wyman came to the front on the 51st; then Wyman two and Cook from the 54th to 74th. There was considerable changing through

A BALLAD OF "OLD GLORY."

It flutters from ocean to ocean High over the elements' roar, The flag of our love and devotion—
The star spangled flag we adore!
It shall reign and shall rule evermore,
Far famed, both in song and in story,
Today and for days still in store— Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

Who can see without deepest emotion The stars that emblazon it o'er— The stars that in war's fierce commotion Flashed triumph o'er sea and o'er shore? The banner confusion that bore To despot and autocrat hoary, Striking tyranny right to the core-

If a foe or false friend have a notion Its prowess and strength to explore,
It shall set all his nerves in a motion

They never experienced before!

Oh, 'tis stronger by far than of yore
When it crushed the vile plot of each Tory!
Ho! fighting 'twill shimmer and soar—
Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory!

Their light may its stars never pour For wrong on a battlefield gory! May its eagle bird live but to score Hurrah for the folds of Old Glory! -Eugene Davis.

THE EXPOSITION FORMALLY OPENED.

Many Special Features of Interest to Progressive Women.

BOSTON, Oct. 5.—The eighteenth triennial exhibition of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanics' association was opened with appropriate ceremony this noon. Addresses were made by President O. M. Wentworth of the association, Rev. Dr. Lorimer, Governor Russell, a representative of the city government of Boston and other distinguished guests. Governor Russell's remarks were brief. Mayor Matthews was unable to attend, owing to other engagements, but he sent a representative. Governor D. President Wentworth's Address: It is to me a pleasure as well as an honor to welcome the official representatives of our be-loved commonwealth and this goodly com-pany of citizens on the opening of this, the eighteenth exhibition of the Massachusetts eignteenth exhibition of the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic association. In the olden times, when to fight was the principal busi-ness of the world, and when men exchanged blows as we do dollars, special gatherings were held where chiefs and knights exhibited their skill at arms for the joy of success, and especially for the approval of the ladies. These tournaments of the middle ages frequently occurred, and their record fills many a page of history. It must have been an imposing sight to see the champions clad in burnished steel, attended by page and squire, entering the lists, admired of all beholders. What excite-ment must have been felt by the spectators when the battle was joined, and when horses and men met in the flerce shock of conflict! But my tongue is not eloquent enough to adequately portray such a scene, and I refer to it only as furnishing an instructive background and perspective to the

we are here to exchange views, to consult, to plan, to distribute duties. When we separate let each man seek his post, and let that post be in the forefront of the Democratic line of battle. Our grand old party is a unit in this campaign. On the 21st or June we had many candidates. On the 23d we had but one, the choice of that great convention, the man demanded by the popular voice in a BREWER'S CORNER Miss Bartlett's Tone Absolutely Imperative.

Cheerfully and loyally and enthusiastically the 7,000,000 Democrats and thoughtfully Independent voters of the republic support that nomination, for they see in his election the return of good government in the land, a UINCY POINT—Post Office.

The return of good government in the land, a safe and wise and economical administration, the end of the war and war taxes at last. We have proud of our great chief, the honest, sturdy, fearless, clear-sighted patriot, Grover Cleveland, absolutely the best president the country has had within the memory of living men. We are proud of his colleague, Adlai E. Stevenson, the eloquent and forceful, high minded true disciple of Thomas Jefferson, a man eminently fitted by heart and head for the highest place in the people's gift.

HOW MACARONI IS MADE.

It Is Eaten So Much Here That a New Industry Has Been Started. Macaroni has taken a strong hold on the affections of food eating Americans, among whom New Yorkers are conspicuous. It is nutritious, digestible and palatable; also provides exercise and amuse

The quantity consumed in this city during the past year, according to restaurant keepers, is in excess of the consumption of previous years to a remarkable extent. In view of these facts some Americans have sensibly taken to manufacturing macaroni. Whether the homemade product or the foreign is preferable will appear in time. It has at least the advantage that it is entirely machine made, and no such horrible suggestions apply to the American article as to the $100,000. One concern in this city has been making macaroni by the ton-or perhaps by the mile would more correctly convey the idea. A visit to the factory the other day brought to light many facts connected with the manufacture of this article. The art of making macaroni involves a somewhat intricate and tedious process-that is, American macaroni. The ingredients, so far as the superintendent was at liberty to make them known without giving away any of the tricks of the trade, consist of farina made from the very best hard wheat grown in Minnesota, Kansas and North Dakota. The grain is reduced to and then mixed up in one common quality. These farinas are selected with regard to their glutinous properties, as that is the chief essential in the making on cars and road. of the paste from which the "pipe stems" are formed. This farinola is made into a paste as hard and glutinous as india rubber.

The paste is first put through a mixer, a 2-ton granite roller revolves. This takes out any moisture that may remain in the paste after leaving the mixer. Then when thoroughly rolled it is lined around the sides of another circular trough and two cone shaped cogwheels proceed to knead and cut the paste in pieces, taking out the flaky veins and giving an equally smooth and glutineus body throughout. From the grinder the paste is ready to go to the cylinders which turn it out perfect macaroni.

It is put in at the top of a round cylinder, the interior of which resembles the interior of a Gatling gun or the ylinder of a revolver. Through these oles run small rods which make the holes in the macaroni. As it come slowly out of the bottom of the cylinder the man operating the machine spread it over a clean board, and when a cer tain length has been spun out it is cut up and laid aside to allow more to follow. This is placed on drying boards on an upper floor, and for ten days it is McVeigh, who was attorney general in President Garfield's cabinet, in a letter to for boxing and selling. for boxing and selling.

The spaghetti is made in exactly the same way, the only difference being that the cylinders which shape the stems are smaller. This same paste is also made and "elbows," or what the French call "coudes." They resemble exactly ar elbow of a stovepipe.-New York World

Incentives to Exploration. Every year the hunt for the precious metals and the shining stones grows sharper until the plateau of Thibet and the farther isles of the eastern archipelago are almost the only likely places where the agents of European firms are not inquiring and prospecting and sending home concrete evidences that, if enough is spent and a sufficient area of unknown territory is diligently examined, there may be solid returns. The emerald seekers of Ecuador know the paths of its mountains better than geographers, and the hunters for gold will make known every ravine of the vast region between Cape Colony and

Lake Nyassa. Every year the demand for wood drives importers into more distant forests, while the enthusiasts of botany and ornithology are ransacking regions into which it was recently supposed to be death to enter. The Phœnicians of our day number whole tribes, and they are penetrating everywhere, exactly like their old prototypes, in search of spoils. Nothing stops the explorers for gain and another party will follow them yet, not longing for minerals or new drugs, but for great estates. Australia was not explored for exploration's sake, but to find lands fit to support great herds, and so will Africa be and the eastern archipel-

An Attractive Way of Placing Pictures. Over the narrow colonial mantel of a young matron's room in her pretty suburban home is arranged a collection of what she calls "my treasures." The "treasures" are pictures of her two little daughters, taken at various stages of their short earthly careers of three and five years respectively, and arranged in irregular grouping around a central photograph of her husband.

"I had the wall above the mantel left unpainted when the house was built last year," the wife and mother explained, "and one of the carpenters paneled the space under my directions. Some smooth laths, stained to match the woodwork, furnished the frames, and I am sure I could have done the work myself except that the men were around Elisha Bassett, clerk of the United and it was not necessary. It seemed to me such a good way to keep these pictures always in my sight, and I enjoy them every day without effort." It should be further recorded that in the library of this home its owner pret-tily returns his wife's compliment by New York Times.

INSURANCE COMPANIES WIN.

A Boston Cattle Shipper's Low Premiur Proves Very Costly.

Boston, Oct. 6.-It was an unfortunate step that Albert N. Munroe took in shipping a lot of cattle on the steamer Misance against a total loss of the cattle, be-cause when the Missouri was wrecked off the English coast in February, 1888, a part of the cattle were saved, and, as there was not an aetual total loss, the insurance companies, under the terms of their agreement with Munroe, refused to pay anything. He brought suit in the United States circuit court against them, claiming $33,000, on the ground that there was a constructive total loss, but the circuit court ruled otherwise, and the circuit court of appeals yesterday sent down an opinion affirming the decree of the lower court. The insurance companies sued were tle over safely or else having them all lost, his premium was less than in case he took out a policy providing that he should be paid for whatever cattle were lost.

"Accordingly, we went back to the jury room. The jurors were stubborn one way and another, and agreement seemed as far away as ever. There was one juryman, Jerry Putnam of Beverly, with whom the other jurors had had considerable merriment. He was somewhat of a Spiritualist, and often while the case was being considered he appeared wrapt in meditation.

At a juncture of the proceedings he moved his chair over to the table in the centre of the room and solemnly bade the jurors to keep perfectly quiet. He then placed the palms of both hands on the table, closed his eyes and bent his head forward as if communing with the spirit world. The jurors could hardly suppress a smile at the actions of Another ballot was then taken and others followed, and the vote stood 7 to in favor of the defendant. The jurymen were now tired and weary, and wished they had never heard of the case.

The cutters claim that the apprentice clause in the agreement provides for one Empire and New England Transportation apprentice cutter to four journeymen, and says that firms employing one journeyman tool sharpener may employ one apprentice. It is claimed by the union that all parts of the agreement date from Sept. 22, and that dealers have no right to act in any train at Wareham, Mass., and instantly that dealers have no right to act in any way to violate it.

The union cutters are now out at Hadley & Melcher's, John Connor's, Wells & Lamson's and C. H. Kennerson's. There is signed. much excitement over the situation of affairs.

A BALLAD OF KISSES.

There are three kisses that I call to mind, And I will sing their secrets as I go. The first, a kiss too courteous to be kind, Was such a kiss as monks and maidens

As sharp as frost, as blameless as the snow. The second kiss-ah, God! I feel it yet. And evermore my soul will loath the same. The toys and joys of fate I may forget, But not the touch of that divided shame; It clove my lips; it burnt me like a flame.

The third, the final kiss, is one I use Morning and noon and night, and not

THE DEMOCRATS'TURN

Bourke Cockran Addresses a Big Crowd at Boston.

RECIPROCITY AND THE TARIFF LAW

As Well as the Force Bill Furnish the Topics for Discussion.

Boston, Oct. 7.—The Boston Democracy swarmed at Tremont Temple last evening, when it was given an opportunity to listen to addresses by New York's brilliant orator, Hon. Bourke Cockran, and ex-Congressman Beck of Philadelphia. The hall was crowded long before 8 o'clock, and soon after that hour it was necessary to close the doors. The overflow meeting which was to have been held in the Meionaon was aban doned because neither Mr. Cockran nor Mr. Beck felt equal to speaking in two places on the same evening. It was thought undesirable that the meeting should be held if it could not be addressed by at least one of the visiting orators. The gathering was a most enthusiastic one. Seated upon the platform were many leading lights in the party.

Ex-Mayor F. O. Prince was introduced by Mr. McDonough as the presiding officer. He was met by rousing applause and responded by a fitting address, lasting about fifteen minutes. He then introduced ex-Congressman Beck, who spoke upon the tariff, the various discussions of this and previous campaigns by the leading political orators, and general issues. He was frequently and heartily applauded. Following the address of Mr. Beck the chairman said: "I have now the pleasure and the honor of presenting to you Hon. Bourke Cockran of New York.' He was greeted with prolonged applause, after which he said in part:

Mr. Cockran's Speech. If there is any apathy in this campaign, it hasn't found its way into Tremont Temple to-night. I believe that in the state of Massachusetts we are witnessing an uprising that precedes a political revolution, and one which will turn her into the Democratic column. In a message to congress in 1887, the true policy of disposing of the treasury surplus, then accumulated, was mapped out by Grover

Cleveland. What he meant then was what he means now. I am reluctant to believe there is any lack of patriotism on the part of the Republicans of this country, but I believe its leaders are drunk, by having power so long. Now the Democratic party believes you cannot create wealth by law, but by economy and industry. The policy of the Democratic party is to admit raw materials for manufacture free, and of the Republican party to tax raw meterials and everything else it can get

There is no royal road to wealth, either for nations or individuals. There is no nower known to man that will make two blades of grass grow where only one grew before, except by the process of labor, and the earnings of the laboring man are all for himself, ex-cept what is necessary for the support of a government.

There are many hundreds of protected manufacturers in Massachusetts. Don't you know there isn't a manufacturer in the world who would pay a man $2 a day if he could get a Hungarian or a Hottentot or a Chinaman to do his work for $1.50? And, on the other hand, there is not a man who would work for $1.50 if he could work for anybody else and get $2. Right here at your doors you have a great ndustry which has been languishing in the dust for years. I refer to

The Leather Industry. Finally hides were put on the free list, and today there isn't an inch of foreign leather more in this country. What was done for the leather industry by placing hides on the free list I believe would be done for the clothing industry if wool were placed on the free list, and for the iron industry if the raw material were free.

I wish to speak on that matter on which Mr. Blaine places so much stress, called reciprocity. In the McKinley bill the president is given power to suspend a tariff tax. Why, that sort of power is the power which Charles I tried to exercise, and which cost him his crown! And yet that law was made by a Republican congress and is now yested in Benpublican congress and is now vested in Benjamin Harrison and is exercised by him.

Now, the language of the constitution may not in plain words forbid this placing of such power in the hands of Mr. Harrison, but there Is a Right Greater and Wider than the provisions made by the constituti You may depend that while they gave the president this power, they didn't give him the right to take off any of the tariff on iron. I think there must be many in this audie who remember, some thirty years ago, that America's ships were outstripping all others on all the seas, and our marine carrying-serv ice was the leading among nations. Now, it would seem that the great deep had opened and swallowed up our merchant marine. Now our ships, what we have, are little better than so many steam locomotives. The Force Bill would allow officers to go to polling places and exercise unlimited authority. It is a horrible thing to contemplate in this free country a ballot box surrounded by the em-ployes of a party who could shoot down American citizens and no law on the statute books to punish them. They tell us they do not intend to pass the force bill. But a party that would contemplate such a thing is innately corrupt and should be punished by defeat and leserves disaster. Now I want to say that I believe the signs of Now I want to say that I believe the signs of the times plainly indicate everywhere a glori-ous Democratic victory. There is not, I be-lieve in the record of the Democratic conven-tion, in all its heat and excitement, one word spoken for which any man need apologize.

Cheers for Hill. At this point someone in the gallery "Three cheers for David B. the other. Suddenly there was a lurch. shouted: Hill!" And they were given in a rousing one wheel had gone over the edge of the manner throughout the house. The gutter. In a second Driver Shaw was speaker then said that he was glad to know that the mention of the name of a know that the mention of the name of a leading Democrat like Mr. Hill would main coach. In less than ten minutes Edarouse such enthusiasm in Boston. Continuing, he said:

Remember, in this contest there is a principle which affects the homes throughout the country. The Republican party has been in power thirty-two years; today it stands for the perpetuation of everything we want to the perpetuation of everything we want to overthrow. It stands above all for the opposition to American liberty.

The Democratic party stands for the protection of the ballot box; stands not for class legislation, but equal legislation for all people. As Chistianity holds all people equal, so Democracy holds all people the same and entitled to all privileges before the law. ome Spontaneous Suggestions from Ledger Readers.

The note of yesterday asking, where shall the new High school be located, brings out the following: Editors of the Daily Ledger:

Why wouldn't the Nightingale estate corner of Temple and Washington streets be a good situation for the new High school building? It is central, on the line of the electric cars and near the depot.

Should Contain Large Hall,

Editors of the Daily Ledger: A more desirable location for the new estate on Hancock street owned by Mr. Henry H. Faxon and occupied by Mrs. Lapham. It is a good-sized lot, centrally can four masted bark and queen of all located, high land and on our main street. Too long has our High school been hid in an out-of-the-way place. Bring it to light and let it be a building that will be an ornament to the city. This done I would add this suggestion, that it contain a large public hall. Quincy needs such a hall quite as much as it does a new High school, and prise to build it, for it may never come. Messrs. Editors, I hope to see these matters further discussed in your columns.

COLUMBUS' FLAGSHIP COMPARED WITH MODERN SAILING VESSELS.

The Wonder to the Mariner of Today Is which rendered coast exploration diffi-How the Navigator Crossed the Ocean cult. in His Little Caravel-A Facsimile for the World's Fair.

Spain is now in the midst of a series of fetes in commemoration of the discovery of America which will last till late in October. On the 3d of August, date of the sailing of Columbus from Palos, the jubilation began, and of all the sights the exact reproduction of the wholesome and beneficial thing if more loud chorus of astonishment and unbepolitical thought and interest could be lief. Almost unanimously they declared that such a ship had not done the thing-it was impossible.

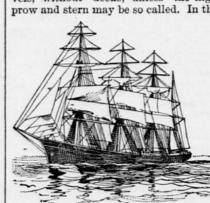

THE NEW SANTA MARIA.

It is indeed hard to believe that the little caravel of 240 tons at the outside could have made such a voyage, and when one compares it with the large sailing vessels of today he may well be incredulous. With the achievements of steam and practical science we are tolerably familiar, but the fact then (though sailing vessels antedate written is as great as in anything else) comes to one as a great surprise. Compare the triotic, which gave her a leading place little Santa Maria with, for instance, the magnificent Shenandoah, the Amerisailing vessels, which a few months ago went from San Francisco to Liverpoo with 5,002 tons of wheat on board.

Consider first the big sailer. The Shenandoah, commanded by Captain Murphy, was one of the five which left the Bay of San Francisco last year on the famous race around the Horn. They sailed at high tide, of necessity, as they drew twenty-seven feet of water. The weight of wheat aboard, 5,002 tons, was the greatest cargo of the kind ever placed in a vessel and equivalent to 166,733 bushels, or the crop of an average agricultural county. An adequate description of the Shenandoah would fill a column. Sailer as she is, she "makes sail by steam," as sailors sayby a little donkey engine, and of all glorious sights to the seaman's eye there is none more glorious than to see her swell from bare poles to full rig of snowy sails in less than five minutes.

The Santa Maria might have been placed on the deck of the Shenandoah without adding perceptibly to her weight of cargo. She was a decked vessel, and while the Spanish historians do not deal in exact measurements they are so minute in details of her capacity that her size is known. Captain Gustavus W. Fox, after a very careful calculation, declares that her length was "63 feet over all and 57 feet along her keel,' with 20 feet beam and 101/2 feet in depth. Her crew consisted of fifty seamen, and Englishman and one Irishman. It is is the result of months of labor, and really a pity that this list is not certainly authentic; it would be interesting to know the name of the first Irish emigrant to America. This historic vessel was wrecked on Christmas eve, 1492, on the coast of Hispaniola, a calamity due to the gross carelessness of the sailing master.

Small as she was, her consorts, the Pinta and the Nina, were considerably smaller, being mere barks, called caravels, without decks, unless the high prow and stern may be so called. In the center such a vessel was absolutely open and in no respect superior to the fishing craft and other light coasting vessels of today. That men should have been willing to dare the passage of the stormy Atlantic in such craft gives us a high idea of their courage, and as a matter of fact only Columbus, Las Casas, the Pinzons and two or three other mad enthusiasts were willing. The crew consisted chiefly of desperate characters compelled to take the trip. Many were released from prison to go, and some had been condemned to death and voluntered as a bare chance for life. BATHED IN A FLOOD OF MOONLIGHT

The Aged Bard Sinks Peacefully and Painlessly to Sleep.

LONDON, Oct. 7.-Lady Tennyson, her son, Hallam, and his wife, Sir Andrew Clark, Dr. Dabbs, the nurses and other servants who had been with him for twenty-five years, were at Alfred Tennyson's bedside when death came. He was tranquil, conscious and painless to the

Wednesday morning Tennyson was turned; at his request, to face the light. After looking at the window for several minutes, he spoke of the brilliancy of the sunshine and the clearness of the air. Early in the afternoon he slept lightly. He awoke in full consciousness. He asked for his favorite copy of Shakespeare, turned the leaves until he found "Cymbeline" and gazed at one page for several minutes, moving his lips as if reading to himself. The watchers watied in silence for him to speak, but he finally laid down the volume without having uttered a word, and with his finger still between the leaves, he fell asleep. The book was

Tennyson watched it through the curtainless window with his hand still resting between the leaves of "Cymbeline." At 10:30 o'clock he was sinking fast. Hallam Tennyson gave him a few spoonfuls of brand and milk; he swalspoonfuls of brand and mink; he swal-lowed with difficulty, and was unable to take further nourishment. At midnight he whispered very feebly his last words to his wife. His fingers still marked the passages of "Cymbeline," which he had last read,

"The end was beautiful, calm and painless," said Hallam Tennyson. "He passed away as if in sleep, and the watchers could hadly distinguish the final moment." During the last two days of his sickness Tennyson was told occasionally of the hundreds of telegrams of inquiry received at Aldworth, and he expressed repeatedly his gratitude that so many persons, far and near, were watching anxiously the course of his sickness. Hallam Tennyson read the dispatches from the queen each day, and his father listened with evident

The next term of court opens Oct. 18, when Florence Hawley, wife of the condemned man, will be placed on trial for the offense for which her husband has been found guilty. The couple were jointly accused of murdering Mrs. Mary L. Munson. The crime was of the most cold-blooded description. Mrs. Munson, who was Hawley's mistress, was murdered Dec. 28, 1891, at Shelton. Before the murder Hawley and his wife were seen going to the house where the body was found, and they were also seen coming away after the murder had been committed. Hawley tried to throw the blame on his wife. She has been mute since

THOSE MILEAGE BOOKS

Threaten to Lead to Quite a Legal Tangle in Massachusetts.

Boston, Oct. 8.-The trouble for the railroads over the interchangeable mileage book law has begun in earnest. Aggrieved parties are making their complaints not only to the railroad commissioners, but are appealing to the courts

Justice Allen yesterday in the supreme court issued an order of notice, returnable next week, on the petition for mandamus brought by George E. Rogers against the Boston, Revere Beach and Lynn Railroad company. The petitioner alleges that he applied to the railroad for an interchange-able mileage book, but it was refused him. He asks the court to compel the railroad to issue the ticket to him. This is the first case brought under the new act, and will undoubtedly be made a test one. One more complaint in relation to the Hutchinson mileage law was filed with the railroad commissioners yesterday. The complainant is J. Edward Wallace, doing business in Boston. He states that he has repeatedly offered a mileage book issued by the Boston and Maine Railroad com-pany on the Boston and Albany road, but the conductor refused to allow him to travel on it. No action has yet been taken by the plaints made from that day would be con sidered, and unless they complied with the law the matter would be referred to the attorney general. A SHARP REPRIMAND

Administered to a Jury Who Obtained : Verdict by Lot.

SALEM, Mass., Oct. 8 .- Judge Richardson in the superior court, in dismissing the second jury, took occasion to administer a rebuke on the report that in the trial of a case at Lawrence they had reached a verdict by drawing lots. He stated that ten of the jurors had signed a statement that the report was false, but the eleventh man had told him that he could not sign the paper.

His honor thought the report had exaggerated the bad features, but that there was some foundation for it. He stated that he found it difficult to think that trict. men selected as jurors could so miscon ceive their duty as to do such a thing; tha such practices at once destroyed all confidence in trial by jury, and the ignorance displayed by such an act would disqualify any man from ever holding such a position again. He did not say that this was done in this case, but it warranted him in impressing upon the minds of all jurors the importance of their duties and the necessity that no ele ment of chance should ever enter into their counsels in arriving at a verdict. A hundred disagreements would be better than a verdict reached by such means.

Case appeared for the Republicans, and asked that a decision be given in accordance with the findings of the supreme court. The counsel for the Democrats did not appear, but it was understood that they agreed. Judge Thayer then rendered a decision in accordance with the finding of the supreme court. This is the first final decision in the famous Connecticut quo warranto cases resulting from the state election of 1890.

HOUGHS NECK PROTECTION.

The Council Committee Give a Hearing and Agree with Petitioners.

The Committee on Fire Department of the City Council gave a hearing last evening on the petition of the residents of Houghs Neck for better fire protection. The hearing was of an informal nature. The petitioners were represented by John W. Hall and A. H. Taber, and the members of the Council committee present were Councilmen Bass, Hammond, Rinn and Litchfield.

Chairman Bass in opening the hearing said this matter was considered last year by the committee but nothing was done; there be done, but the question was what.

Mr. Hall said it was useless to ask for the Neck. The idea was to get something in the line of protection until the pipes were extended. As it is today with a chemical there should be something done to help that piece of apparatus. There should be some tanks on wheels to be kept filled at all times, to supply the chemical. These were absolutely necessary. Mr. Hall's idea was to have a half dozen of these tanks located in different parts of the village.

Chief Ripley said that it was necessary to have more protection than they now have S. Key on exchange with the pastor. there. The tanks would be a good thing. better to go to the Council and ask for the story-with an address by the pastor on necessary money.

Mr. Hall then called attention to Furnald's spring, which he said could be dug out and made into a reservoir, a stand could be built to run the steamer on to and from there the steamer could cover the

The subject of an alarm was then brought up and the telephone and fire Sunday at 7. P. M. Subject for tomorrow alarm circuits were discussed at length, and it seemed to be the general opinion that a fire alarm circuit from the beach to the steamer house would be the best thing, for if the line should break the main circuit would not be impaired. If this was put in boxes would be located at the head of meeting of the Y. P. S. C. E. at 6 o'clock Palmer street, at Manet beach and Hough's P. M. Usual evening service at 7 o'clock;

JOHN SHERMAN TALKS TO GOTHAMITES.

Andrew Carnegie's Pen Contributes to Campaign Literature.

ALBANY, Oct. 11.—Chairman Quincy of the Democratic national committee, wrote to Labor Commissioner Peck yesterday,

The transcripts already furnished us from your tables to be used in your forthcoming report, having given us all the information that will be of any value in regard to the statistical methods employed by you, and the manner in which they have been used, and the information deemed essential by us in respect to the names of the persons making the returns being still withheld from the public, we do not see that any further light will be thrown upon the subject by further transcripts from these returns; and as we understand that you are the subject by further transcripts from these returns; and as we understand that you are charging us for the expense of making them. we hereby notify you that we shall not need tics of labor of this state. I am not surprised, however, at any covert thrust emanating from this source, for it has been the evident purpose of yourself and mugwump allies to leave nothing unsaid or undone to cast discredit upon the summary issued by me.

I was not prepared, however, to believe that in would go to the extent of even assuming rprise at the fact that I was to charge you gal rates for furnishing these transcripts. he patriotic utterances of our great leader, that "a public office is a public trust," I am afraid, is being lost sight of as one of the cardinal principles of the Democracy in the voters, "political guerrillas," I can hardly be lieve that with all their professions of su perior lovalty and public morality, they could regular work to make transcripts of the ecords in its possession to gratify imperti-ent curiosity, and to further the ends of a political party, without legal compensation.

I felt quite certain at the time that the request was made without the consideration which should be, and is always, given to matters of such moment by men of ordinary po-litical judgment; but I shall, of course, be governed by your wishes in the matter, and discontinue furnishing you any further transcripts, although I could supply you any amount of additional tables equally as interesting as those already delivered.

SHERMAN IN NEW YORK.

Senator Sherman began his speech by congratulating the Republicans of this city that at last the Democratic party had been brought to a fair and distinct issue. For more than thirty years the Democratic party had been merely a "I have come to the conclusion," said best embodiment of the principle of protection that has ever been framed by mortal man. I don't say it is perfect, but I say to you it condenses and formulates in fore the general principles and details of our duties on imported goods." Coming to berman's association for alleged conspi-The question is, is it right that any holders of 371 1-4 grains of pure silver or 412 grains of standard silver should go to the mint or the treasury and deposit it and demand a dollar, a coined dollar, or, if we are not ready to give him a dollar, to give him our note on the people of the United States for a dollar? But silver, that much of silver, is worth about 67 cents today. Why should we pay more for silver than its market price? There is the question. In other words, we offer for all the silver from all the mines of the world $1 for what is sold in the market for 67 cents. What would be the results of this mild lunacy? The result would be the reduced standard of $1 down to 67 cents. That would be the result of that. Any man who will study these simple elements will see for himself.

In every aspect that I can view this question, I look upon it as a fraud which no party would dare to commit except the Demacratic The question is, is it right that any holders

If there is no other way to bring this about, there is one simple way. That is to put enough silver in the silver dollar to make it equal in purchasing power to the gold. Put in 450 grains, if necessary, and if that is not enough, put in 550 grains. Then we will have the dollars of equal value.

In concluding, Senator Sherman paid a

DISCOVERY OF THE SPOT WHERE COLUMBUS LANDED.

Walter Weilman Tells How He Explored the Bahamas and Settled the Controversy Concerning the First Land Sighted by Columbus-A Fascinating and Instructive Narrative.

How to get to Watlings was the question. In the harbor were sloops, yachts and schooners galore. One smelled of her last cargo, Jamaica rum; another of sponges. a third of fish, a fourth of poultry. The cabins of all were mere cells. And it was the season of the year when calms reigned for days at a time. The only steam vessel in port was the steamship tender, a crude craft with a bottom as flat as a street car, keelless and not lovely. Besides she cost a pretty penny. For half a day we steamed along the coast of Cat island, and I examined it very carefully. It bears no resemblance whatever to the island which Columbus described in his journal. For fifty years it has been a San Salvador under false pretenses.

In the afternoon we reached Watlings Palm trees and hazy vistas, thatched huts and outlying reefs over which the surf broke lazily marked its shores. A boat at once put off to us. It contained the books of the Assessors: all the officials of the island—the local magistrate, the port officer, the post-master, the sheriff, the colonel of the militia and many more-all in the person of Captain Maxwell Nairn, the only white resident of the island, a veritable Pooh Bah, monarch of a coral isle. The mate, ten men and a boy arrived in a boat at Kahului Sept. 20. The captain, his wife and child, and the remaining eight of the crew, in another boat, are missing. The ship, which was wheat laden, had leaked for some time. Water soaked into the wheat, which became swollen and burst the vessel. Fifteen days after abandoning, the drinking water in the mate's boat gave out, and the only liquid remaining was several bottles of claret. Some of this was stolen by the men, and then the mate mixed what re-mained with the contents of a can of kerosene, and for eight days this was used to moisten their parched lips. The boat was picked up near Hawaii by natives. The occupants had all succumbed to exposure and exhaustion, and were unconscious when the Spreckels sailed. It was noticed that his mind was unbalanced last Friday morning when he began singing "Ta-ra-ra-boom-de-ay," and could not be persuaded to stop. For two days and nights he continued to sing Lottie Collins' famous song, and when his friends could stand it no longer they had him arrested. He sung it while being taken through the streets in the patrol wagon, and the jail corridors have rung with the melody ever since. Upon every other subject, how ever, he is perfectly rational.

For the Latest "Developments" in the Borden Case?

THE GLOBE RETRACTS ITS STORY

By Admitting That a Large Part of It Was False.

Boston, Oct. 12.—The Post's special correspondent at Fall River has this to say of the Borden "fake" this morning:

The humble, abject apology published by The Globe occasioned another flurry. Boston's Coley's face shows marks of much bruising, which tends to corroborate his version of the story. Much excitement prevails, and the prisoner is closely guarded. Judging from what we have heard, it impressed our readers as strongly as it did The Globe. Some of this remarkably ingenious and cunningly contrived story is undoubtedly based on facts, as later developments will show. The Globe believes, however, that much of it is false, and never should have been published.

The Globe, being thus misled, has innocently added to the terrible burdens of Miss Lizzie Borden. So far as lies in our power to repair the wrong, we are anxious to do so, and hereb ender her our heartfelt apology for this in uman reflection upon her honor as a woman and for any injustice the publication of Monday inflicted upon her. And the same sincere apology is hereby tendered to John V. Morse, and any other persons to whom the publica-tion did an injustice.

The Globe comes out in this manner because it believes honesty is the best policy, and tecause it believes in doing what is right. We prefer to build up rather than to tear down,

The importations during the first six months of 1890 and 1891 were respectively $18,141,826 and $9,958, 785. The diminution in the imports from 1890 is very notable, being practically 50 per cent., but it should be remembered that during the first half of 1890 Uruguay was still under the influence of the period of inflation. Compared with 1891, when the crisis was no less intense than at present, the falling off is only some $842,000, of which $630,-000 represents cattle imported from Arno Ropublio, which had a most unfavorable effect on the live stock industry of Uruguay. Wanted the Color to Match.

A young man from Kalamazoo was in Detroit not very long ago, drawn hither this City of the Straits. The visitor was more or less of a Kalamazoolu and the girl didn't feel flattered by his attentions, but she did the best she could under the circumstances, In the evening he asked her to go with him to the ice creamery and she went.

"Waiter," he said in a loud and commanding tone, "bring us two ice creams -the best you've got in the shop, mind."

The waiter bowed. "And, waiter," said the girl in a low. sweet voice, "bring me pistache to match the young man here," and the young man didn't know what pistache was till he saw the color.—Detroit Free Press.

She is able to take daily walks with her husband, and enjoys life in a manner wonderful after the terrible afflictions to which she has been subjected. The unfortunate woman is left without hands to feel or eyes to see. She is also bereft of both outer ears, but her hearing has been so intensified by the loss of sight, so the physicians say, that she can distinguish tection, and by accustoming the child to sounds better than before the accident. Mrs. Baldwin's face is terribly scarred and disfigured. There was no injury to her lower limbs, and she is able to walk as well as ever.

All of these were borne without the use of anæsthetics, and with no hope that Mrs. Baldwin would survive the ordeal. The case is said to be almost unparalleled in the annals of surgery. The suit for $200,000 damages brought by Mr. Baldwin in his wife's behalf against the Central Hudson road is still pending. Mrs. Baldwin is only twenty-three years of age .- Al bany Express.

Corsets and Suspenders.

The summer girl is out with a new wrinkle. It discounts the suspenders by about 100 per cent., although the shoulder straps are pressed into service in conjunction with it.

The new idea is nothing more or less than a pair of corsets worn outside the

A reporter encountered the new wrinkle yesterday on a bridge train and sustained quite a severe shock. A pretty little girl entered the car carrying a violin case. She was dressed in cool summer attire, consisting of a plain skirt and a blazer of the same material. Between the open edges of the blazer front a bit of the same material could be seen, which looked very much like a wide elt. The observer would never have known whether it was a belt or what it was had not the fair wearer been heated and removed her blazer, throwing it over her arm in true man fashion. Then it was seen that the girl had on a pair of corsets outside of her blouse. They were made of the same material as the rest of the costume, of regulation height and were separated in front, being laced together with a silken cord.

The removal of the blazer created a sensation in the car. A couple of young men snickered; an elderly man who wore flowing whiskers glanced at the girl over his spectacles, and then turning very red fixed his eyes on the floor. A matronly old lady started to speak to the cummer girl, but was restrained by her daughter, who said:

"Oh, no, ma; there's no mistake. She wears them that way purposely." "Law sakes!" commented the cld lady, and looked both puzzled and dis-

The strangeness of the costume was increased by having a pair of blue silk suspenders, buckles and all, fastened to top of the corsets both front and back. It was a question whether the suspenders sustained the corsets or vice versa.-New York World.

Privacy in Cathing Coming In.

One good effect of our anglomania is certainly seen in the mandate of the highest fashion against the promiscuous public bathing which bid fair at one time to be imported here from France. The English bathe from machines run well out into the sea, and our swells now try to come as near a similar decorum as possible. If at Narragansett, Cape May and Long Branch the old license still lingers it is distinctly under the ban of the best society, which has branded it with the fatal condemnation -"not nice." Those of the Four Hundred who bathe at Newport use Bailey's beach, around the bluff, at the end the famous Cliff walk. It is a small, beautifully sloping beach, and some of the fashionable elect meet there in the mornings. It is strictly a private beach, and the houses are so placed behind the embankment that it is almost impossible to catch a glimpse of the bathers. At Nahant the bathers use the small beach at an early hour, and a hardier set of human beings could not be found covered from head to heel with comfortable, loose old flannels, heads tied up in straw hats and bathing shoes on feet. Private beaches and early bathing hours without witnesses, a quick rush of a genuine animated scarecrow from the neighboring bathhouse to the water's edge, is the substitute for the highly colored pictures of the Naiad or the Venus of the sands, on which the summer reporters delight to dilate, all along the north shore.—Boston Herald.

Mr. Blaine was seen by a United Press reporter at Ophir Farm. Theex-secretary of state was looking remarkably well. His figure was erect, his eyes bright and the pallor of his face not so marked as on the occasion of his last visit to New York. His voice was strong and his handshake firm, muscular and vigorous. Mr. Blaine expressed a disinclination to being interviewed, saying, with a pleasant smile: "I am not worth being interviewed. I have been ill all summer, and am hardly in a position to know anything of interest in the situation, much less to talk

It was suggested to Mr. Blaine that he might be requested to make one or more speeches on the issues and on behalf of the candidates.
"I have really been too sick to make a

When Mr. Blaine started for New

Grand Military, Civic and Historical Demonstrations.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13 .- The military and civic parade capped the climax of the most successful series of consecutive public demonstrations in the nation's history. The fervor, earnestness and universality of the re ligious exercises of that "twin Sabbath" -Saturday and Sunday last-were followed by the remarkable school and college procession of Monday. FROM THE FRONTIER

An Indian Trader Tells His Story of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Cured of a Distressing Stomach Trouble by Kickapoo Sagwa-First learned of the Medicine through a Souix Indian.

the wonderful curative properties of the Kickapoo Indian Remedies, and proof of their high regard among the frontiersmen and Indians.

The following letter from G. S. Asay, the Indian trader and interpreter of Rushville, Nebraska, gives positive proof of the curative, tonic, and blood purifying qualities of Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

RUSHVILLE, NEBRASKA, June 5.

Sometime ago after suffering severely with stomach trouble, and dyspepsia which had been greatly aggravated by the alkali water of the western country, and when I had reached that stage where I could frequently hold nothing on my stomach, and would even throw up water as soon as drank, I learned from a Sioux Indian who had been on a visit to the Kickapoo tribe of a wonderful remedy called "Sagwa." I got him to procure some for me. The effect was remarkable. I tried to get more from the Indian, but he would not let me have more of his. He prized it so much he would not give it up. I then learned that Healy & Bigelow, of New Haven, Conn., had an arrangement with the Kickapoo tribe, and was putting their remedies on the market. I sent and got a bottle and found it to be the same as that I had procured from the Sioux Indian. I got more, and after the use of a few bottles, I was not only relieved but entirely cured, and have stayed cured ever since.

I can eat anything set before me. Salt Bacon, which used to have a most distressing effect, I can now eat and relish like an Indian. I have also used the Kickapoo Indian Salve for my horses, when they have been cut severely on barbed wire fences, and it heals them right up.

I cannot speak too highly of the Kickapoo remedies. I keep them all in my trading post, and cheerfully recommend it to anyone.

BIG DAY AT MANCHESTER.

Thousands of Strangers Witness a Suc

H., Oct. 13.-The record for the number of strangers in town was broken yesterday, 20,000 visitors crowding the streets to witness the merchants' week trades procession. The mills shut down to afford the operatives an opportunity to view the sights, and as a result the streets were well nigh blocked with the great crowds.

The procession was the longest ever witnessed here, comprising over 1000 persons, 300 horses, six bands, ten drum corps and floats innumerable. The second, third, fourth and fifth divisions were entirely devoted to the trades processions, repre-senting nearly all the industries of the city, including the big Amoskeag corpora-

HOW WE STRUCK IT.

"If I had only come here away back in the early fifties!" sighed a dreamy man to me as we waited for the train at Fruitvale last week. And another man chipped in and sighed also as he said. On the third day, discouraged and disgusted, for not a color as yet had we found, we took the tools and climbed up out of the canyon to a warm mountain side that lay to the sun. It was pleasant here. NEW YORK, Oct. 14.-The culminating feature of the Columbian celebration was the banquet at the Lenox Lyceum last evening. In point of distinguished guests and patriotic eloquence it was a fitting closing to the great demonstations.

The decorations were very elaborate. From the dome of the circular auditorium streamers of red, white and blue reached to politic, many members, all one, serving the ends of every part. We are justly proud to point to the United States today at the achievement of the greatest results yet attained by mankind in the way of society and human fellowship. In the perpetuity of this body politic how much of hope is there for the race in all lands? was the banquet at the Lenox Lyceum the pilasters at sides, where they were lost behind the massive shields about which The fronts of the boxes and balconies were hung with plush, over which flags were festooned. The guests of honor dined on the stage, which was so draped as to resemble an alcove of the main banquetting hall, and in the center main banquetting hall, and in the center appeared a portrait of Columbus, encircled by the flags of Italy, Spain and the United States. Mayor Grant presided, supported on the right by Vice President Morton.

Mr. Depew's unexplained absence deprived the after-dinner oratory of much of its sparkle. At the close of the dinner at 10 p. m., Mayor Grant are to propose the toasts, but as the wines had all by this time been removed, the drinking of toasts was figurative only. The mayor, after thanking all of the organizations who had contributed to make the Columbian celebration a success, briefly proposed:

respectful courtesy which has assigned him the prominent post in these civic ceremonies. It is impressive from the events of the day to the American calendar. The twelfth of October will hereafter be marked with white. We have instituted the Columbian festival to be rated at the expiration of each one hundred years to the furthermost limit of time by ac tors who will not have been witnesses of the preceding celebration. The opening pageant has been worthy of the great pilot and the great discoverer. It has been applauded by a countless audience of millions of intelligent people, so vast that no other city of the New World, and few of the Old World, could administer to its care and protection. Our houses of worship testified for two days to the deep impression called forth by the occasion; the army of children from the schools, equipped only with the weapons of education, put in evidence our confident hope in the future, and the procession on land and water gave constant proof of the patriotism of American people, of our kindred and tribes; of the capacity of self con-trol of these masses, and of the power and ingenuity of a great people.

There were transported to our doors, with speed and comfort, vast numbers of men and women and children, exceeding the popula-tion of most of the capitals of the world, by scientific methods, of which Columbus never dreamed; and during the watches of the night, this cosmopolitan, with its streets and avenues, its squares and arches, its dwellings and monuments, was illuminated as if by fire, by several inventions which are the product of the land which Columbus discovered. On behalf of the president I am here to especially thank the ministers of Spain and Italy and France for the fraternal assistance, and the representatives of other powers for their kindly approbation.

Mr. Mayor, with thanks to you and this distinguished audience for the courtesies personally shown to myself, I now turn over the toast proposed "The United States of America," to the president's principal adviser, the secretary of state.

Secretary of State Foster

There April corresponds with the English chryanthemum month of November, but until this year the growers here have had no means of accurately judging the methods of the plants reared in our Australasian colonies. It occurred to Mr. Earland, gardener to a gentleman living at Wellington, to take a few of his finest flowers to the Meat Refrigerating works. There they were placed in tin canisters filled with water and then frozen.

The tins were opened at the Royal aquarium and found to contain each a solid block of transparent ice, in the middle of which, imbedded as it were in pure crystal, was a beautiful bloom, perfect in shape and color and comparing, as experts declared, with the finest varieties customarily exhibited in England. The mayoralty fight also comes in and the irrepressible conflict between the silver stockings and the short hairs is likewise a factor in the case. So that on the whole, this congressional squabble may have quite an appreciable effect upon the state election. He thinks that Russell will go out of Boston with less than 15,000 votes, and he very much doubts if his excellency will hold his 13,000 of last year.

His views relative to the congressional districts are very much like those of the Democrats given above. He probably coneedes the election of Stevens, and thinks Andrew's chances are good. Mr. Crosby, he says, has lost a little of his followof two years ago, and he has besides in Mr. Wright a dangerous antagonist. PETER'S VISION.

LESSON III, FOURTH QUARTER, INTER-NATIONAL SERIES, OCT. 16.

Text of the Lesson, Acts x, 1-20-Mem ory Verses, 1-4-Golden Text, Acts x, 34-Commentary by the Rev. D. M.

A long lesson and brief space for com ments again compels me to omit the text and ask the student to read with Bible in

1. Other leaders of hundreds in the Roman army are mentioned in Math. viii 5-13; xvii, 54, and elsewhere in the Acts. Jesus said of the one mentioned in Math. viii that He had not seen such faith in Israel as in him. 2. Note the goodness of this centurion, and yet we must conclude from chapter xi, 14, that withal he was not a saved man. He was devout, feared God, gave alms and prayed always, but none of those however good can give salvation. Prove this from Rom. iv, 5; Eph. ii, 8, 9; I Cor. xiii, 1-3. He PROVIDENCE, Oct. 14.—Detective Mc was, however, an earnest seeker, and did as well as he knew, and God gave him light.

3. God gave dreams and visions to Abim-eleck, Pharaoh, Nebuchadnezzar and others who were Gentiles, but there was a special reason for this revelation to this Gen tile, partly because he so honestly lived up to the light he had. "If any man will do His will he shall know of the doctrine' (John vii, 17).

4. He recognized in the angel a superior person, and with awe and reverence asked "What is it, Lord?" He was immediately assured that God had heard his prayers and observed his devotion. If this was true of Cornelius, how much more of all who are saved by Jesus' blood and ask things according to His will. What confidence we should have (I John v, 14, 15). 5, 6. God knows where to put His hand upon a man whom He can use. He know the town we live in and the house in which we dwell or sojourn. He recognizes also our occupation and the people whom we entertain in our house. He notices the loyou?" "Oh, yes," came the answer, and then the stranger began to look. "Took part at Shiloh, didn't you?" continued lieve he was a person of the "Jack the Ripber of the with whom we have to do" (Heb. iv, 13). cation of our house. In fact, "All things 7. Observe his promptness. He delayed not to do as he was told, but calling two servants and a soldier he hastened to obey orders. The soldier also is called a devout man. The example of such a centurion would tell upon all about him and upon some with marked effect. 8. They were men whom he could rely

9. Cæsarea was probably not less than fifty miles north of Joppa, so that if the servants left the same evening that Cornelius received the vision they would reach Joppa some time the next day. Now notice how God prepares Peter for their coming. When they are not far from Joppa Peter is led by the Spirit to go upon the house-tops for prayer. Cornelius was a praying man, Peter was a praying man; it is to such that God reveals Himself. 10. While waiting for food for his body God lays His hand upon him, he falls into a trance and sees heavenly things and is taught a great lesson. "Man doth not live by bread only," and Job could say, "I have the sold only," and Job could say, "I have of His mouth more than my necessary food" (Deut. viii, 3; Job xxiii, 12).

11. This is one of seven verses in the WALTHAM, Mass., Oct. 14.—Up to date there have been forty-nine cases of scarlet others are Ezek. i, 1; Math. iii, 16; John i, cerning Christ or His church.

12. The great variety of animals seen in this vision would include many which were to a Jew unclean. All Gentiles were considered unclean by the Jews, and the with the murder of Mrs. Phœbe LeBaron, thought of a Gentile enjoying equal spiritual privileges with a Jew without being circumcised, etc., was simply too absurd to be entertained.

13. A voice from heaven commands Peter to rise, kill and eat; but Peter, though a Jew, is not so obedient as the Gentile centurion. The word of Mary to the servants at the marriage in Cana (John ii, 5) is a very helpful one, "Whatsoevor He saith

14. Peter boasts of his obedience to the law in that he had never eaten anything unclean. It sounds strange to hear boasting of ceremonial cleanness from one who had denied his Master and forsaken Him, ADAMS BUILDING, and on more than one occasion allowed satan to speak and act through him.

15. Jesus had taught His disciples that not what they are would defile them, but that which cometh out of the mouth from the heart (Math. xv, 11). And even Peter should have known that it is always safe to do as God tells us. He did learn his lesson, however, at this time before God got through with him, for in verse 28 he says, "God hath showed me that I should not call any one common or unclean."

Sôme of us seem to learn very slowly. 16. God is very patient with us and sets us the same lesson again and again till we learn it. God speaketh once, yea twice yet man perceiveth it not (Job xxxiii, 14). If we were a hundredth part as patient with each other as God is with us, how much we might accomplish for Him! 17. While Peter wondered as to the meaning of this vision the three men from Cornelius stood before the house—three Gentiles, unclean in Jewish eyes, but God us as to accomplish His pleasure!

18. While Peter was pondering the three men were asking for him by name. They had both of his names correctly. Had they simply asked for Simon, the owner of the house might have thought that they meant him; but the inquiry is very plainit is for Simon Peter. God can make plain

19. The Holy Spirit is ever ready to guide This is the third arrest that has been Father, Son and Spirit for us (Rom. viii, those who are willing to be guided. With 26, 31, 34), how can we fail to be led aright if we are only willing to be guided? Let our motto be, "Ready to do whatsoever my Lord the King shall appoint" (II Sam.

20. There is no room for doubt when God calls or speaks. The Father sent Jesus, Jesus sends us (John xvii, 18). We must learn to see God in everything. Having committed our way unto Him, and being ready, willing and obedient, we can count upon Him to lead us in His way and make Tariff and Reciprocity Discussed at Ophir Farm.

MAKES A PLEA FOR THE IRISH VOTE

Their Former Oppressors.

His speech was delivered under unique ciryesterday afternoon that the residents of intended serenading him at Ophir Farm, by people. The men represented every walk of life, from the retired merchant to the farmer or town blacksmith.
At 9 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Reid and their guests appeared in the parlors, the shades were drawn up and the party were plainly seen through the plate glass windows. At this moment a brass band, followed by a torchlight procession, marched up the driveway from the south. It was the col-ored Republican club of White Plains. They were followed by the Port Chester Republican club, and also led by a band and carrying torches. The two bodies of 4.75 to 12.00 ing doors were then thrown open and Mr. Reid and guests appeared. They were loudly cheered. Mr. Blaine stood on the Blaine's Speech.

Fellow Citizens of New York—I should be churlish indeed if I did not make response to your call after you have come several miles to this beautiful home of Mr. Reid on a pleasant October evening. At the same time, I am not making speeches in the canvass, for reasons which are well known to my friends, and which have no connection whatever with politics. Generally, administrations, in a presidential election, are challenged on account of the condition of business of the country, and I admit that the Republican administration of President Harrison can triumphantly endure such a test. I doubt if, since the government times" so general, taking in so many interests and spreading prosperity throughout the whole domain of trade.

I might appeal to New York if the city has ever passed a season more satisfactory in financial results than for the past two years, seriously and to a very natural extent. More are smaller in numbers than the men engaged n manufactures. Nor if you go west, where the Democrats this year are making considerable effort and doing a vast amount of boasting, will you find it different. Take Ohio, take Michigan, take Indiana, take Illinois, and the products of manufactories are greater in pecuniary amount than the products of agriculture in

We learn from the Democratic party that these western states are in a desperate condi-tion. The amount of their farm mortgages This is not so among the farmers of New York. It is not so among the farmers of New Jersey. It is not so among the farmers of Connecticut. It is not so among the farmers of Connecticut. It is not so among the farmers of Pennsylvania. It is not so among the farmers of any state near by, whose condition can be easily learned; but by singular fatality it is the western farms that have got all these farm mortgages burdening them and taking the life out of the people. I do not like to state that gentlemen have voluntarily misrepresented the facts, but before accepting them as such you will do well and wisely to or patrons of his office, their politics, etc., with a view to sending them campaign literature. The commission says that no paper is on file in its office containing evidence that kind, and I shall make the being the statements of that kind, and I shall make the Democratic accusers the judges in the case. A careful examination of the list of wealthy men in the country has been published, and has demonstrated the fact to be quite the re-verse, to such an extent indeed, that, in the year it is one of the mysteries of politics that a question which interests England so su-premely, which is canvassed almost as much in London as it is in New York, should have the Irish vote on the side of Great Britain. If the Irish vote were solidly for protection they could defy all the machinations of the Demo-cratic party for free trade, and throw their in could defy all the machinations of the Democratic party for free trade, and throw their influence on the side of the home market of America against the side of the foreign market of England.

I know this appeal has been frequently made to the Irish voters, but I make it with emphasis now, for I am unwilling to believe that, with light and knowledge before them, they will deliberately be on the side of their oppressors. I think I shall rely on my good friend Egan, the brilliant and successful minister to Chili, whom I feel especially glad to meet at Mr. Reid's table this evening. I oppressors. I think I shall rely on my good friend Egan, the brilliant and successful minister to Chili, whom I feel especially glad to meet at Mr. Reid's table this evening. I think I must rely on him to intercede with his countrymen in two senses—not to aid the Democratic party in lowering the standard of the wages of American Labor by their potential votes and their potential numbers.

When the applause that followed Mr. Blaine's speech had subsided there were calls for Patrick Egan, and the minister to Chili responded in a short speech ir which he claimed that the Republican party deserved all the credit for having called out the principles of humanity and called out the principles of humanity and civilization, and that the satisfactory set-tlement of the Chilian incident was due to the prompt and decisive action taken by Harrison's administration.

Chauncey M. Depew then spoke. He was in a humorous vein and paid West-

Three of the Democrats—Faulkner of West Virginia, Gray of Delaware and Turpie of Indiana—are believed to be in danger. In Nevada there is a contest be tween Stewart, who seeks re-election, and Bartine, now a member of the house. Both are classed as Republicans, but Stewart worked with the Democrats in the force bill issue in the last congress and the silver fight, and the Democrats claim that if he should be elected he will gener-ally act with them. Bartine is a Republially act with them. Bartine is a Republican of all points except free coinage of silver. It is believed by Republicans that the Democrats may not hope to gain more than two senators, which would give them forty-one, forty-five for the Republicans and two Farmer's Alliance men. They do not think that the Democrats can obtain control of the senate in the next congress. So that even if Claysland chould be grants an addinge is kicked and cuffed by the grants an addinge is kicked and cuffed by the grants an addinge is kicked and cuffed by the grants an addinge is kicked and cuffed by the grants an addinge is kicked and cuffed by the grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in China, all the audiences he grants are given in public. The present is a grand opportunity for superintendent, street laborers, election of- battle, because neither of the leading whole drift of "party loyalty" is toward official positions and unearned political reworking to perpetuate itself by extolling its past virtues, which are fast fading away. The Democratic party cannot point backward with pride, but its leaders are trying to make ignorant voters believe that a brilliant future can be built upon the party's rotten political foundation.

Mugwumps have taken possession of the Democratic party and are furnishing the brains that control the mob which enters into its composition. Mugwump influence is generally thrown on the side of the rumseller, and because of its respectability, makes the party a doubly dangerous foe. 6. He promised that he would soon make a statement which he thought would clear up many things about which the public were now in doubt. Detective McHenry is not now in the employ of the city. He was authority given by Mayor Coughlan. He looked up and reported several minor mat-ters in a very creditable way.

It Will Be Brought Before the Supreme Court for Settlement.

Boston, Oct. 15 .- Attorney General Pillsbury, on complaint of the railroad commissioners, is now preparing to carry to the supreme court the case against the Boston and Albany Railroad company for Smith, Dem., White River Junction, 8649; failing to comply with the mileage law. He has consulted with the counsel of the railroad corporation, and has been informed that the company had no intention of complying with the law. Attorney General Pillsbury has his case well under way and action will be taken before many days. The complaints, since the railroad commissioners notified the different corporations in the state that they were doing wrong, have all been against the Boston is dying. It is said from the same disease. that it was the desire of the different railroad officers to have that road test the law, and it is also said that the commercial travelers centered their complaints on this road.

Three commercial travelers walked into the railroad commissioners' office Thursday, and made a formal complaint against the Boston and Albany company. Their complaint was that mileage books had been purchased from the New York and New England company, and had been offered for passage on the Boston and Althat the books were issued in compliance with the law, and, according to the statute, were good on any road in Massa- o'clock with a verdict of guilty in the first chusetts. FATAL FREIGHT WRECK.

Five Men and Several Horses Crushed Death in Connecticut.

NEW LONDON, Conn., Oct. 15.-A'Boston express freight collided with a Brattleboro freight bound south just south of the flag station at Harrison's Landing on the New London Northern railroad. The engines came together head-on and a frightful wreck was the result. The first car of the wreck was the result. The first car of the south-bound train contained four race horses bound for the races at Groton. Four of the five men in charge of the horses were killed outright, and one was so fearfully injured that he died a few minutes after reaching this city. None of the train hands suffered injury other than that sustained in jumping from the trains.

Factories condensing milk in other states have had to contend with fermentation, so that in their estimates they calculate on 10 per cent. as what is known as "swell beads," or fermented cans. The injunction was granted at the in stance of Emily S. Lombra, widow of the deceased, who claims that the money should have been paid to her, as her husband had led her to believe it would be, and he so desired before his death, and according to the rules of the order.

It is claimed by Julia A. Waterman that Mr. Lombra designated her as the one to receive the death benefit, and she is therefore entitled to it. The matter will be argued at the next term of the court, and the lodge officials are much interested in the result.

HUSBAND ACCUSED OF EMBEZZLEMENT

But He Claims That His Wife Agreed to Give Him $100,000.

NEW YORK, Oct. 17 .- Charles A. White, representative of the London Illustrated News, was arrested in this city charged with the embezzlement of $5000. The charge s preferred by his wife, formerly Mrs. Nagle, who resides in Cheyenne, Wyo. White was taken to the Jefferson Market court and remanded.

White, in the first instance, was also charged by his wife with having kidnapped her 16-year old son, George H. Nagle, with ulterior designs on his fortune. Telegraphic dispatches were sent that the lad was being secreted at the St. James Hotel in this city, but when officers called at the St. James they learned that White

Charges and Counter Charges. This was about a month ago and nothing was heard in the matter until Saturday, when the sheriff of Cheyenne arrived with requisition papers and a warrant under which White was arrested on the embezzlement charge.

White, it appears, met Mrs. Nagle, wealthy widow, about a year ago, while both were visiting Hot Springs. The acquaintance soon culminated in marriage, and White, as Mrs. Nagle alleges, tained from her shortly afterward, by threat and duress, $15,000 in cash and a promissory note for $75,000. In addition he embezzled from her $40,000 worth of stocks and bonds, and immediately upon lisposing of these fled.

White, on the other hand, alleges that his matrimonial consent was purchased for $100,000, of which but $15,000 was paid in cash; the balance was to be paid as soon as the widow could convert her securities It was for the purpose of securing this balance, White says, that Mrs. Nagle gave him her note for $75,000 and ample collateral security.

An Exhibition of Stamps. Stamp collectors will do well to visit

The first postmark on a stamp is dated Jan. 10, 1840, the first Belgian, 1847, and the first French January, 1849. One of the pearls of the exhibition from an amateur's standpoint is the North American collection. It comprises the secession stamps with the thirteen stars, the stamps struck previous to the civil war and since, and those issued in 1869 and 1875 in which there are the heads of Washington, Franklin and Lincoln finely executed, a spread eagle, a Kentucky horse, a steamer, the landing of Columbus, the reading by the fathers lish railways is one of the things that one travels on this side of the Atlantic. Not only are the railway carriages divided into compartments for each class, but at many of the stations separate waiting rooms and "booking offices" are provided. It does seem singular to see such signs at the stations as "First and second class ladies' waiting room" and "Third class ladies' waiting room." A critical observer is likely to wonder why the companies do not set a grammarian to Mr. Key keep watch on the sign painter. Why not let "ladies" stand first in these signs, or better still, let "ladies' waiting room" precede the designation as to class? Perhaps the answer would be that it has always been as it is—that is, as long as railways have existed-and that is a sufficient answer so far as the people of England are concerned. That it is a reflection upon an estimable lot of people to call them "second class ladies" or have penetrated the minds of those responsible for this atrocity.—London Cor. New York Tribune.

Carlyle's "Reminiscences" are smart, though the great genius in them almost overshadows their smartness. Still, the predominant egotism in them, the accent of self assertion, is never absent. The enormous losses of life and property which occur yearly by fire, especially in smart, though extremely fascinating in large cities, have resulted in the organization of fully equipped local fire departion of fully equipped local fire departion of fully equipped local fire departions when we notice the predominating though subtle egotism in both Carlyle carts. Self forgetfulness and smartness are irreconcilable qualities and self forgetfulness is essential to the highest breeding. And smartness, when it is not joined with great genius, soon satiates, nay, even nauseates. It is all very well in public life, because all public life is intermittent. But in private society smartness wearies and overwhelms.

Mr. Disraeli was smart, and in his youth oppressively smart. When he took Gibraltar by storm by changing his cane at the evening gun, he was smartness in excelsis; but if we were compelled to choose between smartness in excelsis and Sunday school teacherism in excelsis, we are disposed to think that of the two great evils we should choose the latter. Dullness can be endured, full of glare—soon becomes intolerable. -London Spectator.

YOUNG GARZA CAPTURED.

Taken Into Custody by Captain Shely, Brother of the Murdered Sheriff.

GALVESTON, Oct. 17.-Encarnacion Garza, younger brother of the Mexican revoutionist, Catarino Garza, arrived here by steamer yesterday from Key West, in custody of Captain Joseph Shely, the noted ranger, by whom he was arrested on Wednesday last. He was taken to San Antonio last night, where he will be tried for violation of the neutrality laws.

Captain Shely has been on the trail of Garza since his brother, Sheriff Shely, was shot by a band of revolutionists some weeks ago. He reached Key West Oct.10, and found a grand celebration of the an-niversary of the declaration of Cuban indeendence in full blast, and Encarnacion darza in gay uniform and nodding plames, marching at the head of a procession of over I500 cuban sympathizers. Remaining quiet until the fedivities were over, Captain Shely affected Garza's arrest next morning and left by steamer with him for this place.

Garza had been in Key West since March 10 last. He was actively at work organizing a band to invade Cuba. He lived in the house of Pedro Lopez, one of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates, who have been gradually abtraction of the largest and wealthiest cigar manufactory magnates. turers. Garza's chief concern upon being arrested was that he might be turned over to the Mexican authorities, which would mean speedy death, but upon being assured that he would be accorded a fair trial in an American court, he accompanied Captain Shely without further objection. He stated that his brother, Catarino, is not now on American soil.

Garza Was in Maine. SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 17.—James Henderson of this city has just returned from Platio Blanco, the ranch of Alejandro Gonzales, the father-in-law of the revolu-tionary leader. He states that Mrs. Garza is making preparations to go to Valparaiso, where she will join her husband, who sailed for that port four weeks ago from New York. The court holds that the official ballot should be printed without party designa-tion at the head of the ticket, and that voters can only express their choice by stamping opposite each name or proposition voted for-except as to presidential electors, who may be voted for by a single stamp opposite the party group on the

Each individual candidate's name, however, will be followed on the printed ballot by his party's designation. The court is unanimous in its decision, which is considered an important one by all parties.

Councilman Federhen said the Auditor had notified him that he could not be present. The charter provided he should be present when requested unless excused. The Council had not excused him. He moved to lay communication on the table, and it was so voted.

The interest on the city debt must b paid as soon as it becomes due, otherwise the notes of the city would go to protest. The City Solicitor having rendered an opinion, that if the city purchased the land it could be compelled to pay said interest, and that the Mayor could order the payment of said in-terest without any further action being necessary on the part of the Council, the Auditor was so notified and requested to attach his certificate to the claims, but

To have refused to pay these claims as aforesaid in the absence of any legislation on the part of the Council would have re

Queen Labella's Dream.

[From the Catalan of Verdaguer.] Girded I sat with garden green Nigh famed Alhambra's fairy towers, That lately held the Hagarene, But now, my Ferdinand, are ours.

Broidering a robe I seemed to sit Where bright a silvery fountain stirred, And where a branch enshadowed it I marked the flutter of a bird.

He flitted downward to my feet. And oped his beak and sang to me, And soothing was his song and sweet As honey of the rosemary.

Then softly from my drooping hand He drew the jewel of my heart, Pledge of the troth of Ferdinand And marvel of Granada's art. O carol blithe in dale and dell, And flit where'er thy heart is fain, But to the hand of Isabel Restore the jewel thou hast ta'en.

Into the deep of heaven he flies, And with his flight my heart takes wing; Flashing thy fires from azure skies, How brilliant didst thou seem, my ring!

While land endured, by dell and steep I tracked the fleeting, air borne prey, But sadly sat me down to weep Where ocean's billow barred my way. And strained my vision where afar

Melted the splendor fugitive, Like the last glitter of the star That morn proclaims, nor may outlive. Far where the western waters surged The bright thing sank, and out of them,

O miracle! like sylphs emerged

An isle for every vanished gem. The splendors of my ring returned
In flower and herb and fruit and tree, Where ruby wed with emerald burned, Clasped by the sapphire of the sea.

Radiant with blossoms garlanded, That wondrous bird came winging on, And brightly had enwreathed my head, But with my grief my dream was gone. Sailor, in thee the bird I know That spoiled me first, then nobly crowned;

God's envoy art thou, sent to show How hidden Indias may be found. Take, Colon, take my gold, and change My gems for calleys stanch and fleet;
For bluebells I the wood will range,
And deck my hair with meadow sweet.

The Boundaries of Oxford.

The custom, which is only observed at rare intervals, of perambulating the boundaries of the city of Oxford, England, was followed this year, and was of more than usual importance owing to the fact that the boundaries had been extended since the last occasion when a tour was made six years ago. The mayor and other members of the corporation in their robes left the city ouildings at 8 o'clock in the morning, preceded by a band and the city mace

During the day many amusing incidents took place, some of which might have proved dangerous. At Wolvercote there was a dispute about the boundary, and a clergyman who opposed the city forces was somewhat roughly handled. At the Cherwell punts were used, and the one containing the mayor, the sheriff Lewis McIntyre are the G. A. THE ENDEAVORERS.

PHENOMENAL GROWTH OF A YOUNG CHRISTIAN ORGANIZATION.

Begun in February, 1881, It Now Includes 22,000 Branches and 1,500,000 Members-Father Endeavor Clark-The Great Convention in New York City.

N THE evening of Feb. 2, 1881, a little group comosed chiefly of young converts were gathered in the home of Rev. Francis E. Clark, pastor of the Williston church, in Portland, Me There had been a

From all the experiences of past revivals he could not but feel that the love of many would wax cold; that a few would fall away might be considered certain, as well as that many who remained Christians would be chilled by church formalism or fail to act in sympathy with older members. There was some talk of the tendencies to doubt and dissent now prevailing, and a suggestion that possibly young converts were asked to believe much at the time when they should rather be asked to do

The suggestion was a spark that fell among materials ready to kindle, and at once a little class or club was organized on a plan which might be set forth in these words, "Do at once what thy hand findeth to do and doctrine will take care of itself." Thus was born the Young People's Society of Christian Endeavor, which now includes some 22,000 societies and 1,500,000 members. Its name is its platform, "Earnestly endeavor to lead a true Christian life, and after that creeds and denominations."

CHICAGO, Oct. 20 .- A crisp, invigorating atmosphere, its touch of frost gently tempered by the genial rays of the sun, as it looks down from a cloudless sky might be interpreted as a special recognition from the elements of the opening day of the festivities incident to the dedication of the structures designed for the use of the World's Columbian exposition. The Stars and Stripes and tri-colored bunting are floating proudly. Apparently, the hotels are already as full as they need be. There are crowds at the larger ones and smaller ones alike, and at some of them, notably at the Auditorium, the Palmer and the Grand Pacific, it is difficult at times to force a way through the crowds that fill the rotundas.

Speeding Chicagoward from every state and territory, while the ordinary trains are running in two, three and four sections. Governor Tuttle of New Hampshire with his staff and party reached the city several hours late. The carriages on hand were barely sufficient for the accommodation of the ladies, and so the governor headed the procession on foot to the Wellington. There was a large crowd at the Union station to extend a relcome to Governor McKinley and the nelegation from the Buckeye state. They came in force, over 250 of them, members of both branches of the legislature, repre sentatives of the judicial bench, of the various state departments and the mem-bers of the state board of World's fair THURSDAY, Oct. 20-CONCERT. After this, the pupils, four abreast, marched out to the playground, where they stood in battalions, heads uncovered, while the Stars and Stripes were hoisted and unfurled. The Grand Ball. Chicago's Auditorium, the greatest as sembly hall of the continent, was ablaze with light and beauty last night. Lovely vomen were there, women whose presence yould create a furore at a drawing-room in Buckingham palace; women in toilets that would put to shame the greatest creations of a Worth. And there were men—men who have made their imprint on the history of this and other nations statesmen and diplomats; warriors that have faced the dusky foe in the jungles and tried conclusions with the enemy on the briny deep; men of letters and law, of science and art; merchant princes, whose early days tell stories of toil and poverty, Tirrell's Block. history. 'It was a scene of Almost Indescribable Brilliance that presented itself to the vision of the lowed.

"God helping me," cried Columbus, "though fair or foul the breeze, I will sail and sail till I find the land beyond the western seas!"

So an eagle might leave its eyrie, bent, though the blue should bar, To fold its wings on the loftiest peak of an undiscovered star! And into the vast and void abyss he followed the setting sun: Nor gulfs nor gales could fright his sails till the wondrous quest was done. But Oh, the weary vigils, the murmuring, torturing days, Till the Pinta's gun, and the shout of "Land!" set the black night ablaze! Till the shore lay fair as Paradise in morning's balm and gold, And a world was won from the conquered deep, and the tale of the ages told! Uplift the starry Banner! The best age is begun! We are the heirs of the mariners whose voyage that morn was done. Measureless lands Columbus gave and rivers through zones that roll, But his rarest, noblest bounty was a New World for the Soul! For he sailed from the Past with its stifling walls, to the Future's open sky. And the ghosts of gloom and fear were laid as the breath of heaven went by And the pedant's pride and the lordling's scorn were lost, in that vital air, As fogs are lost when sun and wind sweep ocean blue and bare; And Freedom and larger Knowledge dawned clear, the sky to span, The birthright, not of priest or king, but of every child of man! Uplift the New World's Banner to greet the exultant sun! Let its rosy gleams still follow his beams as swift to west they run, Till the wide air rings with shout and hymn to welcome it shining high, And our eagle from lone Katahdin to Shasta's snow can fly In the light of its stars as fold on fold is flung to the autumn sky! Uplift it, Youths and Maidens, with songs and loving cheers; Through triumphs, raptures, it has waved, through agonies and tears. Columbia looks from sea to sea and thrills with joy to know Her myriad sons, as one, would leap to shield it from a foe! And you who soon will be the State, and shape each great decree, Oh, vow to live and die for it, if glorious death must be! The brave of all the centuries gone this starry Flag have wrought; In dungeons dim, on gory fields, its light and peace were bought; And you who front the future—whose days our dreams fulfill— On Liberty's immortal height, oh, plant it firmer still! For it floats for broadest learning; for the soul's supreme release; For law disdaining license; for righteousness and peace; For valor born of justice, and its amplest scope and plan Makes a queen of every woman, a king of every man! While forever, like Columbus, o'er Truth's unfathomed main It pilots to the hidden isles, a grander realm to gain. Ah! what a mighty trust is ours, the noblest ever sung, To keep this Banner spotless its kindred stars among! Our fleets may throng the oceans—our forts the headlands crown— Our mines their treasures lavish for mint and mart and town-Rich fields and flocks and busy looms bring plenty, far and wide-And statelier temples deck the land than Rome's or Athens' pride-And science dare the mysteries of earth and wave and sky-Till none with us in splendor and strength and skill can vie; Yet, should we real on Liberty and Manhood less than these, And slight the right of the humblest between our circling seas— Should we be false to our sacred past, our fathers' God forgetting, This Banner would lose its luster, our sun be nigh his setting!

But the dawn will sooner forget the east, the tides their ebb and flow, Than you forget our radiant Flag and its matchless gifts forego! Nay! you will keep it high-advanced with ever brightening sway-The Banner whose light betokens the Lord's diviner day-Leading the nations gloriously in Freedom's holy way! No cloud on the field of azure-no stain on the rosy bars-God bless you, Youas and Maidens, as you guard the Stripes and Stars! EDNA DEAN PROCTOR.

Square garden, closely packed, held about 12,000 of them, but it was only the favored minority who got in. A much larger number congregated in various churches or held impromptu meetings in the parks-"overflow meetings," they would be called in politics. Even the dry arithmetical details as read by Secretary John Willis Baer had all the charm of romance and kindled fresh enthusiasm among the Endeavorers.

Thirty evangelical denominations were represented. The Presbyterians lead in the organization with 4,806 societies. Next are the Congregationalists with 4,495 societies, the Baptists with 2,736, the Methodists with 2,335 (if the Methodist Protestants with 422 be included that denomination ranks third), and the Disciples of Christ with 1,557. In all Canada there are 1,377 societies, in Australia 232, in England 300, in Turkey 20, Mexico 19, the West Indies 12, Samoa 9, China 9, Japan 6, and so on through all the lands in lessening numbers, the total in so called missionary lands and minor islands running up to over 300. Secretary Baer concluded his summary with this touch of humor:

Christian Endeavor is interdenominational. interurban, interstate, international, interracial, and, if it be true that there are other worlds than this, we shall find that it is inter-planetary, simply because it is based upon God's universal law of progress through self denying endeavor and ministration.

Full details of the convention's pro ceedings have been published and widely read. Suffice it, then, to say that Father Endeavor Clark, as they call the late president, and in a sense the founder of the organization, presided at the opening and was presented with a gavel made from the granite of the cornerstone and black walnut of the pulpit of the parent church Williston, at Portland, Me. Mr. William Shaw, treasurer of the united organization, took the chair for the time, and Rev. Dwight M. Pratt, Rev. Clark's successor at Williston, made the noted places. Quincy Office, 52 WASHINGTON ST. | An important feature of the convention was the discussion in regard to opening the World's fair on Sunday. Rev. R. V. Hunter, of Terre Haute, Ind., opened the matter by asking for a vote, and there was a thunderous "No!" which seemed to shake the building. He went on to tell how the United States senate had made the grant of aid conditioned on the fair being closed on Sunday, whereupon a Canadian delegate called for three cheers for the American rom our Works on Liberty Street, Scuth senate, and they were given with a will. A committee appointed at last year's convention at Minneapolis then reported resolutions protesting against such Sunday opening, which were adopted later. When Dr. Clark read the official announcement that Great Britain and Canada would close their exhibits on Sunday there was a tremendous outburst, and then Ohio's band of singers gave a rousing song, with a chorus to the effect that "O-hi-o won't go if the World's fair is open on Sunday," which delighted the convention immensely. Another very curious and entertaining incident was the contest for the banner. Two years ago at St. Louis a wonderful banner, composed of badges of hundreds of societies, was displayed, and the announcement made that each year it should go to that state, territory or province which had shown the greatest proportionate increase. Last year Oklahoma took the prize amid unbounded hilarity, having increased her list thir-

Wollaston School.

The Columbus day exercises of the Wollaston school attracted a large audience to the schoolhouse Friday morning. The hall was elaborately decorated with flags, bunting and flowers.

The programme, which was published in Wednesday's LEDGER, interested the audience for upwards of two hours. Col. W. W. Marple of Wollaston delivered an ineresting address.

The interest of the day centered in the prize essays on "Christopher Columbus," for Mr. Corthell had offered ten dollars in gold as the first prize. The essays were good and showed that the competitors had put considerable study into the subject. The gold prize was awarded to Albert M. King, and Beatrice Key, Lizzie H. Thayer, Nathaniel A. Thayer and Amy L. Key received honorable mention.

DAYS OF ANXIETY

Rendered More Burdensome by Inquiries as to Mrs. Harrison's Condition.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 22.-The anxiety in the capital as to Mrs. Harrison's sickness was increased last evening by the concities stating that reports as to her death were in circulation. These rumors were groundless, but they gave rise to many unnecessary inquiries at the White House and caused annovance to the grieved household. The actual facts are that Mrs. will pass as so many others have passed, in watchfulness and anxiety, but without any sudden change one way or the other. Early this morning Mrs. Harrison was sleeping quietly. She had a slight nervous attack about midnight, from which, however, she speedily recovered.

DISS-DEBAR BOBS UP AGAIN. This Time She is Arrested for the Al-

Mrs. Diss-Debar, or, as she is now called, Vera Ava, went to Elgin last winter with a man who claimed to be her agent. She Short and interesting addresses were then deingratiated herself into the good graces of Mrs. John Mitchell, whose husband had committed suicide a few months previous. A month ago Vera Ava reappeared there and stopped with Mrs. Mitchell, giving seances. The day of the alleged theft Mrs. Mitchell had drawn $1000 from the bank, and was counting it in her room, in which she was assisted by Vera Ava. Mrs. Mitchell was called to the door or some occasion. When she returned to the room, Vera and the money were gone.

AN ARGENTINE BATTLE

Won by Citizens After a Desperate Encounter with Troops.

LONDON, Oct. 22.-A dispatch to The Times from Buenos Ayres says that a revolt in Santiago del Estero had its origin in a band of twenty-five citizens, who were headed by Garcia, the leader of the last outbreak in that city. They made an at tack on the city hall, which was defended by a number of troops. The latter fought desperately for an hour, but the attacking force compelled them to surrender. The loss on both sides were five men killed and nine men wounded. The governor and vice governor were captured by the rebels The revolt is the result of a well-matured plan to oust the provincial government. The city is quiet, but great enthusiasm prevails among the people at the succ of the rebels.

To conquer the prejudices of the clergy, to win the approval and financial support of the state, to venture upon that unknown ocean, which, according to the beliefs of the age, was peopled with demons and savage beasts of frightful shape, and from which there was no possibility of return, required the zeal of Peter the Hermit, the chivalric courage of the Cid, and the imagination of Dante. It was a happy omen of the position which woman was to hold in America, that the only person who comprehended the majestic cope of his plans and the invincible quality of his genius, was the able and gracious Queen of Castile. Isabella alone, of all the dignitries of that age, shares with Columbus the honors of his great achievement. She arrayed her kingdom and her private fortune behind the enth usiasm of this mystic mariner, and posterity pays homage to her wisdom and faith.

title, and then the individual with whose names we need not waste space, all scrambling for self, but all at the same time averring that they are the Codlins and Shorts as far as each party is concerned. The "Irish vote," cries one at Republican headquarters, "is safe. There was never a larger rally of Irishmen beneath the Republican standard." "Irishmen since time of Wolf Tone," proclaims the time-server at Democratic headquarters, "have been wift the Democrats, and never so much as now." Both announce their absolute power to trot up the Irishmen to the absolute power to trot up the Irishmen to the polling booths.

Mr. Blaine notes the lack of excitement attending the political elections, contrasting it with the turmoil of interest that char respectively. It is time that this sort of thing should come to an end. We hear very little from either Republicans or Democrats about Ireland and Irishmen, except during these political campaigns, when the candidates usually profess undying love for Ireland and her cause and have their friends make up their platitudes, intended first, last and all the time for political effect.

Why then should men, posing as Irishmen, set themselves up as public auctioneers of the votes of their countrymen? Why should the lives and aspirations of Irishmen for their unhappy country be forced into use in a political game of battledore and shuttlecock, in order that a few may have their own petty ambitions gratified? The Irish voters in this country are too intelligent to be blinded and hoodwinked by ignoble devices, and they will east their voters that a few may have the process of the process of

INAUGURAL ADDRESS.

President Craig Tells of the Benefits of Literary Societies.

The first regular meeting of the Quincy Literary and Debating Society was held in Doble's hall, Saturday evening. After the new officers had been duly installed, and appropriate speeches made, the vice president took the chair and called upon President Alexander M. Craig to deliver his inaugural address.

Choosing for his subject "The advantages of Literary Societies" he gave a very forcible and eloquent exposition of some of the benefits which may be received from this medium of self culture, and was listened to with marked attention throughout. In this condition and when I was in despair I heard ibout "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa," and was natuced by a friend to try it. I confess that I had no faith and little hope. In three days after getting this remedy I felt relief, and after using the first bottle was better than I had been for years. I continued its use, and after taking six bottles I was a well man. It not only cured me of the gastritis, but it gave me new life, new hope, new courage, and I felt like my old self.

It is no less hurtful to man to think alone than to live alone; interchange of ideas is as essential to the mind as exchange of products to the body. All outward appearances vary according to the angle from which they are viewed; to a considerable extent they reflect merely the ideas of the student. To the contented, cheerful man, life is light and pleasant. To the bottle was better taking six bottles I was a well man. Washington, Oct. 25.-Mrs. Harrison died at 1:40 o'clock this morning.

From 1 o'clock Mrs. Harrison was to all intents a corpse, her breathing being hardly perceptible, and her respiration gradually decreased until 1:40, when she passed away. Her death was as peaceful as a child in sweet repose. President Harrison was at the right side of his wife in a reclining position from 1 o'clock, when Dr. Gardner notified the family that the end was close at hand. In this position he remained until 1:49, when life was thought to be extinct, and Lieutenant Parker, who was at the bedside called in Dr. Gardner, and the experienced eye of the physician soon detected that Mrs. Harrison was no more. The president gave way to an almost audible outburst of grief, but soon suppressed his emotion, and endeavored to console Mrs.

All the members of the family remained in the room for probably fifteen or twenty inutes after the death, and then, over come by grief, they repaired to their regreat sorrow. Mrs. Harrison passed away without a struggle. Private Secretary Halford immediately notified all the cab inet officers who are now out of town, or Mrs. Harrison's death

During the evening there was received at the executive mansion telegrams of condolence from all parts of the country expressing sympathy for the president in his hour of grief.

The Beginning of the End.

In the course of yesterday Mrs. Harrison passed through two of the nervous spells which have so seriously affected her in the later course of the disease. At 8 educational interests subsequently led to were at breakfast, they were hastily sum-moned to the sick room, the patient having given evidences of a return of the nervous disorder. Dr. Gardner had warned the family that a recurrence of pression that the end was at hand. But ferer all through her sickness again asserted itself, and she again rallied from the attack.

About 9:30 o'clock another relapse oc curred and again there was a hasty gathering in the chamber, but once again she re-covered and emerged from the dark valley into which it seemed that she had gone down for final rest.

President Harrison and Mrs. McKee divided with Miss Davis, the Brooklyn nurse, and Josephine, Mrs. Harrison's own maid, the active duties of the sick room, being relieved occasionally by members of the family. But the president did not long remain away from the bedside, and when she opened her eyes in the brief intervals of waking he was

The First One She Saw. About 6 o'clock last evening Private Secretary Halford said that Dr. Gardner had stated had stated that Mrs. Harrison might live until 8 o'clock.

Shortly afterward advices were received by wire at the White House that a story nad originated in the west that Mrs. Harrison was dead. It gradually worked its way east, and in a short time several telegrams of condolence were received. Mr. Montgomery, in charge of the tele-graph department, immediately answered the messages to the effect that there was no truth in the story and its circulation was premature.

At 7 o'clock a message was received from John M. Scott, Mrs. Harrison's brother, stating that he would leave Port Townsend, Wash., at once. The family had been endeavoring to reach Mr. Scott, who was Mrs. Harrison's only brother, since Saturday, but had been unable to locate him until yesterday. He had been

The result of the long strain upon the president is a matter of serious concern to his friends, but it is believed that he will be able to endure it to the end with the same confidence and

While all the members of the family were surrounding the bedside the patient was in a semi-conscious and motionless position, and these were indications that an immediate dissolution was at hand. At 1 o'clock the doctor made a hasty examina-tion and found that the respiration was gradually decreasing, and there were other signs that the patient was in the throes of death. He made an almost inaudible communication to the bereaved ones, using these words: "I don't think she will last half an hour."

The end came forty minutes latter. At the bedside were the president, the patient's son and daughter, Russell Har-rison and Mrs. McKee, Mrs. Russell Harrison, Mr. McKee, Mrs. Newcomer, Mrs. Lieutenant Parker, Mrs. Dimmick, Mr. Halford and the nurses. TO SAVE THE SHIPS.

FOR THAT PURPOSE TWO POETS HAVE WRITTEN RINGING POEMS.

The Effort of Oliver Wendell Holmes in Behalf of Old Ironsides Duplicated by Conan Doyle in Defending Nelson's Flagship from Destruction.

Beneath it rung the battle shout,

And burst the cannon's roar— The meteor of the ocean air Shall sweep the clouds no more! Her deck, once red with heroes' blood,

Or know the conquered knee— The harpies of the shore shall pluck The eagle of the sea.

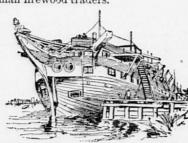

Oh, better that her shattered hulk

Should sink beneath the wave! Her thunders shook the mighty deep, And there should be her grave; Nail to the mast her holy flag, Set every threadbare sail, And give her to the God of storms, The lightning and the gale!

It was this poem that preserved Old Ironsides—one of the noblest crafts that ever carried valiant sailors and with stood iron hail in the service of the United States of America. Had it not been for Holmes' splendid invective she would today be nothing save a memory.

A similar experience has recently agitated the patriotic people of England, and the result has been practically identical with that which caused "the universal Yankee nation" to lay its tribute of regard at the feet of Holmes. Some weeks ago the admiralty sold Lord Nelson's fine old flagship, the Foudroyant, to a German firm to be chopped up into firewood. A London paper, in announcing the fact, remarked that this was nothing unusual. Only three years before England sold Nelson's pet trophy of the battle of the Nile—the magnificent Canopus—taken from the French and named by Nelson himself. Even the Victory was nearly sold to the ship breaker in 1830, when the admiralty of the day actually proposed to have Nelson's Trafalgar flagship destroyed. II was only Hardy's urgent remonstrances, backed by letters in the papers, that saved the Victory for England, or she, too, would have shared the fate of the fighting Temeraire and the Bellerophon. The Foudreyant's threatened fate, however, was harder than the fate of these. She, the only existing ship, except the Victory, in which Nelson fought, was to be broken up in a foreign land by German firewood traders.

THE FOUDROYANT. The firm that bought her for £1,000 ffered, after the popular remonstrance had taken form, to sell the vessel to England for five times the sum they had paid out. Then Conan Doyle, the famous novelist, wrote this poem: Who says the nation's purse is lean, Who fears for claim or bond or debt, When all the glories that have been Are scheduled as a cash asset? f times are black and trade is slack, If coal and cotton fail at last, We've something left to barter yet—

Our glorious past. There's many a lot in which lies hid The dust of statesman or of king; There's Shakespeare's home to raise a bid. And Milton's house its price would bring. What for the sword that Cromwell drew? What for the prince's coat of mail? What for our Saxon Alfred's tomb? They're all for sale!

And stone and marble may be sold, Which serve no present daily need. There's Edward's Windsor, labeled old, And Wolsey's palace, guaranteed, t. Clement Danes and thirty fanes, The Tower and the Temple grounds, How much for these? Just price them, please, In British pounds.

You hucksters, have you still to learn The things that money will not buy? Can you not read that, cold and stern As we may be, there still does lie Deep in our hearts a hungry love For what concerns our island story? We sell our work—perchance our lives— But not our glory. Go, barter to the knacker's yard

The steed that has outlived its time! Send hungry to the pauper's ward The man who served you in his prime! But when you touch the nation's store, Be broad your mind and tight your grip; Take heed! And bring us back once more Our Nelson's ship!

As a consequence "our Nelson's ship" and the admiralty are trying to explain.

It is worthy of notice that two poets now living have saved the countries to which they belong from lasting disgrace. In each instance their indignant verse prevented the destruction of a ship that had been the scene of heroic deeds and glorious victory. It is more than half a century since Oliver Wendell Holmes

Aye, tear her tattered ensign down! Long has it waved on high, And many an eye has danced to see That banner in the sky;

Where knelt the vanquished foe,
When winds were hurrying o'er the flood
And waves were white below,
No more shall feel the victors' tread

One Peculiar Development of Mrs. Harrison's independence of character was a dislike to be copied after or made to set a fashion in dress or manners in spite of herself. If she got an idea that women were wearing their hair in a certain way or draping their skirts after a certain fashion just because she did it, she would get provoked and change the style of her cent. less; and when I say that I am understatent hair or her skirts at once. There were no fashions set from the White House while she was there.

Mrs. Harrison was not fond of the fuss and feathers of official life, but on the other hand she never evaded the duties imposed upon her by her husband's pos tion. She was an excellent cook, and even while at the White House personally supervised the domestic arrangements, go ing to the length frequently of doing the marketing herself. She also had imme diate charge of her grandchildren, the McKees. Mrs. Harrison was an excellent usician and performed very prettily on the piano. A WIFE'S CONFESSION.

Mrs. Hill Plotted to Imprison Persons of authority who watched the Her Husband.

Another Man Appears to Have Been A rumor is going abroad that a police officer, who for some reason did not testify at the inquest, has stated that he saw the Mixed Up in the Case.

BOSTON, Oct. 26.—Says The Globe: Liv ing L. Hill, who was arrested in Saco. Me. last April, charged with forgery and attempting to poison his wife, arrived in Boston Monday. He was seen yesterday by a reporter, and stated some of the circumstances of the case. Mrs. Hill has made a statement or confession in which she fully exonerates her husband, and re-24 she said:

said sickness was not any ham or other thing I ate which my husband gave me. History of the Case.

Mr. Hill conducted a provision store and restaurant in Boston, and his wife and three children resided in Saco. Mr. Hill frequently visited his wife, and sent provisions and money from Boston. On Friday, April 22, he received a letter in Boston, saying that his wife was very sick and that he must come home at once. On Sunday, April 24, Mr. Hill reached Saco and was arrested. The hearing was set for the following week, but Mrs. Hill was too ill to appear. Her statement was At this time no arsenic had been found to prove the charge that a poisoned ham had been sent to Mrs. Hill, by her husband some days before. The hearing was then set for May 13, and on May 3 arsenic was found in the wine of Mrs. Hill. Mrs. Hill came to Boston in November, 1891, without sending her husband any word of her intended visit. She returned to Saco, according to her statement, consulted three lawyers, two of whom offered her no such advice as she was seeking, and the third took her case. In January, 1892, divorce proceedings were commenced by Mrs. Hill, but were dropped soon after. In part, the statement, or confession, of Mrs. Hill is this:

The Confession.

I was led to do the terrible deed, and did all in my power to have Hill in prison, thinking then that I was doing right. But now I real-ize what a terrible crime I was committing, and I feel it a duty before God to make a con-

I should never have done this only that I was under the influence of —. He was a single man, and was so nice that I determined not to live with Hill again. I fairly fell in love with — and promised to do what he wished. I was entirely under his section, and the every word and deed of his just right, and never questioned his love for me.

The confession then goes into detail concerning the hearing and the finding of the arsenic, and continues: I still thought I was doing right, and went villingly to the grand jury to have Hill in-my power to get Hill convicted. Let people think as they will, I was under such influence and such love showed me by Mr. — at his office and by his frequent and friendly calls at my house that I was possessed of evil. When the news came that Hill was free, I felt that my plans to live with — were ended. He discontinued his affections, though I still feel kindly toward him.

Mr. Hill, though he keerfly feels the cloud that rested on him for a short time, is glad of an opportunity to make public his complete vindication.

Lawrence Aldermen Give Testimony Regarding the Granting of Licenses. LAWRENCE, Mass., Oct. 26.—After Judge Fessenden decided yesterday to have the aldermanic bribery cases tried in Lawrence and at this term, matters were hummed along. John W. Aldermen Doyle and Gallagher tes-tified to practically the same facts. Both denied voting for James H. After a while an agreement was reached. Each alderman and the mayor was given a certain number of licenses, and so the list of forty-four was agreed upon. The program at Indianapolis includes services at the First Presbyterian church at 10:30 a. m., followed by interment at Crown Hill. After remaining a few hours at the residence of R. S. McKee the party will leave on the return trip at 5:40 o'clock Saturday afternoon about 6 o'clock. The party will comprise the president's per-

No invitations have been issued to the exercises in the east room, but provision will be made as far as possible to enable the relatives and personal friends of the President and Mrs

Harrison to be present. Secretary John W. Foster called at the White House last night, and although he did not see the president, he remained in the office of Private Secretary Halford for more than an hour.

All of the members of the cabinet are in Washington, except Secretaries Charles Foster, Elkins and Rush, but they are ex-

INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26 .- The news of Mrs. Harrison's death was received in this city with the profoundest sorrow. Preparations are making for the funeral by friends of the president's family, who have been empowered to act fo them. R. J. McKee and Miss Nannie Newcomber visited Crown Hill at the request of the president, and selected sev eral lots, one of which will be chosen after the site has been described to the stricken family. Flags are at half mass and emblems of sorrow are everywhere seen. The funeral party will arrive Fri day about 10:30 a. m. The body will be taken at once to the First Presbyterian church, where services of a simple charac ter will be held. The survivors of the Seventh Indiana-General Harrison's reg-iment-will meet on Friday and attend the services in a body.

Poet Riley's Tribute. INDIANAPOLIS, Oct. 26 .- The News prints the following poem, written by James Whitcomb Riley:

CAROLINE SCOTT HARRISON.

Now utter calm and rest, Hands folded o'er the breast, In peace the placidest,
All trials past.
All fever soothed, all pain
Annulled in heart and brain,
Never to yex again— She sleeps at last. She sleeps; but O, most dear And best beloved of her

Ye sleep not, nay, nor stir Save but to bow

The closer each to each, With sobs and broken speech That all in vain beseech Her answer now. And lo! we weep with you, One grief the wide world through Yet, with the faith she knew, We see her still. Even as here she stood,

All that was pure and good And sweet in womanhood— God's will her will. Professor Swinton Dies Alone.

The style of architecture should be adapted to an American landscape, and some of the neat and attractive composites scattered here and there through our states are preferable for this purpose to any feudal importations. The style should also depend much on the location. There are two methods of making a building beautiful-by the fullest and most subtle development of constructive requirements, and by the application of forms which accentu

First, a prize valued at $20, for the best declamation; a second prize of $15, a third of $10, and a fourth of $5; also five prizes of the value of $1 each for those who would otherwise receive only honorable mention. These prizes Mr. Corthell will continue for hall of goodly size, connected with the five consecutive years. These prizes to be ompeted for in the spring of next year.

Mr. Lull also announced that he was instructed by Dr. Joseph M. Sheahan to offer sion it was given out that the indication two sets of prizes to be competed for by scholars of the High school. A first prize of the value of $10 and a second of $5 for the translations from passages to be selected; also prizes of equal value for the best essays upon certain subjects to be assigned.

Dr. Gordon thhught it better for the jured board not to take any special action, but if anyone wanted to give prizes let it come from individuals to individuals and not from the school board.

Mr. Cotton moved the offer be accepted with thanks and a committee of three consisting of Mr. Corthell, Dr. Sheahan and the superintendent, be appointed to make such arrangements as were necessary.

Fr. Roche was not in favor of anything of the kind, because if we offer prizes for one particular study there was danger of the pupils neglecting other studies to compete for these. He did not believe in accepting gifts of this kind for the schools, as it opened the doors for persons for private interests to offer prizes, which the board having accepted in one case could not well refuse to in another.

Dr. Gordon offered as an amendment that it is inexpedient for the board to take action. He thought it would not be proper for the school board to enter any special prize-giving scheme. He was willing prizes should be given, but wanted it understood it did not come from the board.

Mr. Keith agreed with Dr. Gordon, but thought it rather dsscourteous to pass his amendment. He suggested that both gentlemen withdraw their motions and let the that Mr. Corthell and Dr. Sheahan in tended to give prizes. Mr. Cotton and Dr. Gordon then with

The motion was carried.

A Longer Course. Mr. Keith moved a committee of three be appointed to consider the expediency of making the course of the grammar and primary schools nine years instead of eight and report at the next meeting.

In support of his motion Mr. Keith said many consider the grammar school the end of their education and the change would do a great deal of good, as it would enable the scholars to get more education.

Mr. Lull, when asked what per cent. of scholars attended the higher schools, said that 7 per cent. of the school population of Massachusetts attend the higher branches. Mr. Keith's motion prevailed and the chairman appointed Messrs. Keith, Shea-

A Pathetic Incident in Real Life. There is a pathetic story which has never been told attending the death of James T. Leighton, of New Haven, who fell dead in Monument square. Portland, Wednesday evening. It appears that he had a son who, in a fit of rage, induced by an altercation with his father, left his home and mysteriously disappeared. The months went by and the father and mother received no tidings of their boy. Learning that he was employed in Portland, the mother and father went there on the Boston boat Wednesday morning and registered at the Preble. He searched the city all day with no success, and though ill and that night.

BIG INDIAN RALLY.

Hundred Thousand People Turn Out to Hear Democratic Speakers.

NEW YORK, Oct. 26.-Tammany hall held a grand ratification meeting last night. The wigwam was packed and the throng about twelve open air overflow stands filled up the streets and paralyzed traffic for blocks around. It is claimed the total attendance exceeded 100,000.

State Senator Roesch introduced Governor Flower as chairman. The governor made an address, in the course of which he said that the Harrison administration during the past year has not reduced the public debt a single dollar, and from present appearances will not be able to make any further reduction during the remainder of its official life. The governor

The governor dwelt on the tariff and force bill issues and commended Mr. Cleve-land's administration.

Senator Hill then addressed the mee ing. He said: "Today the greatest reliance of intelligent political observers for the success of our national candidates in this state is upon the immense majority which is expected to be rolled up in this city under the auspices of the magnificent organization of Tammany Hall."

Proceeding, the governor expressed con ney of New Hampshire was one of the tempt for the ostentatious zeal of the new callers at the national Republican head- convert who, after having for years enquarters yesterday. He knows there is no plank in that platform that advocates free trade. Nobody outside a lunatic asylum thinks of having free trade, unless it is Mr. McKinley himself.

The speaker then read an extract from what he said was the speech of Mr. Madison, made in congress at that time, and which was to the effect that Mr. Madison did not intend nor desire that the tariff should be a permanent thing. He also was in favor of commerce being as free tional resources. From that day to this the

The cattle trust, the largest of all the trusts in our land, paid $100,000 to get an honest election in New York. Then they wanted a tariff on hides, and Governor McKinley put one on. Then the congressmen from Massachusetts said, "Put it on, if you dare." Then Mr. McKinley, who is very obliging, said, "Very well, then, I'll take it off." But then the cattle trust said, "Here, we paid spot cash for this, and we ought to have it." Then Mr. McKinley said, "All right; I'll put it back again." ley said, "All right; I'll put it back again."
But then the men from Massachusetts said, ley said, "All right, In Massachusetts said, But then the men from Massachusetts said, "Put it on again, and we'll knock it higher than Gilroy's kite." So Governor McKinley took it off again. And that matter of the $100,000 with the cattle trust

They say that the cost of living has been increased. This I utterly deny. All articles can now be bought on an average

We pay 60 per cent. tariff on linen handkerchiefs, and it is impossible to produce them here because the climate is not suited to its growth.

People of Boston, we must have free raw materials from top to bottom, or New England will go into decay.

Stagnation in Shipbuilding.

The stagnation in the shipbuilding trade on the Clyde is apparently most serious. The North British Daily Mail estimates that there are at present between Glasgow and Greenock over 15,-000 men out of work, every one of them willing to accept any occupation that might offer, although skilled workmen at their trades. This statement, however, only partly shows the depression. Out of 148 building berths on the Clyde dustry employs in good times from 50,-000 to 60,000 men, and it follows that there are 30,000 or 40,000 men not work ing on the Clyde who would be employed there if all the yards were in full operation. Mr. Crofton gives as his reason for renouncing the Republican party that he is opposed to the force bill and the tar-iff, and that Harrison has not carried out a single promise that he made to the colored people before election.

Owing to the limited capacity of the edifice, it was impossible to seat clubs or organized bodies, although representa-tives of such were accommodated so far as possible. An exception to the rule was made in behalf of some sixty members of General Harrison's regiment, the Seventieth, and who were given seats in the south aisle. About one-third of the seating capacity of the edifice was reserved for the immediate family, relatives and friends, and those of the general public who were first on the ground were then admitted until every seat was occupied. The doors were then closed. The total seating capacity of the place of worship is about 800, so that comparatively few of the thousands that were anxious to participate in the exercise were able to gain admittance. The request was due to the wish of the president to avoid anything savoring of display or ostentation, and the honorary pall bearers that had been selected, Judge W. A. Woods, Thomas Sharpe, W. P. Fish back, Moses G. McLain, Dr. H. R Allen, John B. Elam, Hugh Hanna, E. B. At the Grave a short passage of scripture was read and a prayer offered as the casket was lowered into the vault. This service occupied but a few moments. There were thousands of visitors to Crown Hill cemetery when the remains of the first lady of the land were laid in their last resting place. A SWEDE REPLIES

To the Arguments at the Democratic Mass Meeting.

Editors of the Daily Ledger: I was present at the Democratic mass meeting at Hancock hall last Monday night and had the honor to listen to three of the speakers. I feel obliged to make some remarks upon what these gentlemen said, hoping that these remarks through the LEDGER will reach some of the Scandinavians, to whom the addresses specially and the boy above them thrust a tele-

A common laborer could earn 150 patches no more'n sif they's postal to 200 kronor (about 50 cents average) a day, and often a good deal less. He can earn in this country from $1.50 to $2.00. Now let us see what he had to pay for nis necessities, or the relations between wages and prices. A pair of woolen hose eost from Kr. 1.00 to Kr. 1.50. About the same quality you get here for 40 or 50 cents. A woolen shirt that you buy here for $1.50 would cost you about Kr. 3.00. A suit of clothes that you can get in this country for about $20.00 would cost you 50 to 60 kronor. A pair of shoes that you buy here for $3.00 you would have o pay about Kr. 12.00 for. These are only a few articles mentioned to show what is pretty near the same all through.

Is there any one of my countrymen who will contradict these things? Still in Sweden the laboring man is quite as well off as in any of the European countries.

Mr. Rice had something to say about Jay Gould and what this railroad king had drawn from the laboring people. I believe that if any Democratic leader, as well as any other leader, had the business genius and the energy and power to raise himself up to the same standpoint as Jay Gould, he would do it. Certainly the will is not

Then we have the next speaker (an old pettifogger, by the way). Among other things he informed us that he has been in this country about twenty years, (if I am not mistaken), and he never earned enough to go home to the old country to see his relations. A WONDERFUL MEDICINE. Sagwa Cured When All Hope Had Fled.

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 15, 1892.

I owe a debt of gratitude for the great benefit derived from the use of that noble remedy, "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa." I suffered untold tortures from Gastritis, or catarrh of the stomach, in its worst form, and frequently would have to abstain from eating altogether for days at a time, and at all times my diet required the most careful selection, and I was forced to deprive myself of all the luxuries of the table. I spent hundreds of dollars in consulting the best physicians without receiving any help, whatever, and life had lost all charms for me.

In this condition and when I was in despair I heard ibout "Kickapoo Indian Sagwa," and was nduced by a friend to try it. I confess that I had no faith and little hope. In three days after getting this remedy I felt relief, and after using the first bottle was better than I had been for years. I continued its use, and after taking six bottles I was a well man. It not only cured me of the gastritis, but it gave me new life, new hope, new courage, and I felt like my old self.

State bank currency would lead to inflation and an unhealthy spasm of business enterprises and echemics besides redundant currency, ior-lowed by an inevitable crash that would just as certain as disease results from a I am able to judge the fundamental secret of the Democratic currency plank was a desire to benefit the southern people, who want to pay off their debts cheaply. The Democrats evidently believed that such a scheme would prove popular in the south and result in an increase of business in that section. This state bank notion revives the ancient states rights question, which is opposed to the supremacy of the nation in regard to the laws and human rights. The currency of this country should remain the same as it is and should be based on the national banking system. I found out when abroad that a greenback is just as good in the heart of Europe as a piece of English gold coin. Everybody is illing to accept it without discount. "The Democrats made the so-called force bill an issue," was suggested.

"I am familiar with that measure," re plied Mr. Edmunds. "There is not, and never was a force bill. I deny that it contains any more vice than is found in the laws of three-fourths of the states. The objection to it seems to arise from the simple fact that it provides that the nation shall scrutinize the election of mem-bers of congress, and to its supposed interference with state rights. It does not n any way interfere with state elections and the misconstruction as to the purport

Harrison would be re-elected, and that the protection issue and sound currency that the Cleveland electors have withwould thereby triumph.

Stevenson's Views. Among the callers at Democratic na tional headquarters yesterday was Vice Presidential Candidate Stevenson and General James S. Ewing, his law partner. General Stevenson was in the best of spirits. In conversation with a reporter of the United Press, he said: "Wherever I have been in this campaign the trend seems to be in favor of the Deocracy. I am an old campaigner, and aving spoken in over twenty campaign I never saw a movement more universal than this Democratic movement, and Democratic victory 'is in the air,' as the saying goes. I have taken pains during my tours to ask privately if there were any Democratic defections. That is one of the ways I have always employed in ascertaining the drift of sentiment. I are returnable in May in the United States of the control of the c gle notable Democratic defection. All the men who voted for Cleveland in 1884 and 1888 seem to be going to vote for him again, and the accessions are certainly very numerous.

"The pleasantest time I have had on my trip-I must say this without derogation to other sections of the country where I have been most cordially received -was in North Carolina, my birthplace. It was pleasant to go back there. It was pleasant to meet the people whom I knew for years, and it is pleasanter still to be assured, as I have been, that I drew hundreds of people away from the People's party back to the Democracy. Nothing more gratifying has occurred, in my ca-reer, than this. Last night I spoke at Stamford, Conn. It was a large and enthusiastic meeting. I was told by conservative gentlemen there that Connecticut would surely go Democratia Of course I can only judge from what I hear in such a case as that, but I will say this, that if the rest of the state is like Stamford, and the meetings elsewhere like the meeting I addressed last night, I certainly

He then discussed the McKinley bill, pointing out where he thinks it departs from the true protection policy and wherein it inures to the benefit of the monopolies. He next replies to the allegations that his conversion is due to political disappointment, by declaring that his motives have been entirely honest. After some reference to the non-political character of the Grand Army and to the contrast between the Republican party in its early days and now, he closes with these words:

DEMOCRATIC UNITY.

Prediction That It Will Give Cleveland a Tremendous Majority in New York. Buffalo, Oct. 29. — Hon. James F. Crooker, state superintendent of education, in an interview on the political situation in this state, said: "I believe Mr. Cleveland will carry New York state by a tremendous majority. Not long ago I estimated his majority at from 20,000 to 60,000. I now firmly believe that he will come nearer 60,000 than 20,000. There are several reasons for this opinion. First, Democratic unity; next, Republican strife, and, third, the new ballot law. Moreover, the very large registration in Democratic strongholds is an extremely good omen for the Democrats. Then, again, we have a favorable indication of the drift of popular sentiment in the great numbers of Republicans who are declaring themselves for Cleveland, while there are no bolting Democrats, and many Democrats who did not vote for Cleveland four years ago will

From this on it was a steady, conquering march. The big streams of water looked like squirtguns, playing against the roaring sea of

From Babb & Kipp's the fire had eaten backward to East Water street, but there it was held by hard fighting, with the fire companies enveloped in smoke and flames, undistinguishable, except as the wind whirled the curtain apart at times for a second. Balked here, the flames threw

They did not feel safe until they put the Milwaukee river between them and the fire. There were hundreds of cars in the Northwestern yards which were lost. The switchmen of the road worked like beavers in moving as many as possible, going back and forth in a storm of fire and smoke Again and again they went in, returning with trains, until the available tracks were full and the heat drove them away.

The flames would jump across building for a block, leaving them untouched, only to return later and wipe them out, in spite of the efforts of the firemen.

Troops Guard Property. The Fourth regiment, under command of Colonel King was called out to assist in guard duty, as the crowds in the vicinity of the burned district numbered thousands, and the police needed assistance. A platoon of the Fourth, which assembled at the armory, was sent to the house of correction, near which institution a fire was reported raging, with no police guard on Companies E and F did guard duty along Detroit street, where there were piles of household goods hastily removed from the burning houses. Company A was on guard around the Northwestern yards, where thieves had attempted to loot box cars.

THE WANTS OF SOCIALISTS

To Be Set Forth at a Demonstation Bloody Sunday's Anniversary.

LONDON, Oct. 31.—The socialist commit tee of six, appointed to arrange the Trafal-gar square demonstration on Nov. 18, the anniversary of "Bloody Sunday," has formulated a resolution which will be presented and undoubtedly passed at all platforms on that day. The resolutions affirm that the number of unemployed workingmen in the United Kingdom, and especially in London, is increasing with alarming rapidity; that the suffering dur-ing the coming winter is likely to be un-precented, and that, therefore, the imperial government, county councils and all other bodies of local authorities ought to prepare to supply employment on ASA P. STEVENSON'S LETTER OF ACCEPTANCE

Declares That the Question of Taxation is the Foremost Issue.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Oct. 31.-Adlai E Stevenson, Democratic candidate for the vice presidency, has sent the following let ter of acceptance to the president of the national Democratic committee:

ADLAI E. STEVENSON.

To the Hon.William I.Wilson, Chairman, etc., When, in the presence of 20,000 of my countrymen, I accepted the honor conferred upon me by the convention over which you presided, I promised to indicate by letter, in a more formal manner, my acceptance of the nomination tendered by the assembled representatives of the Democratic party of the United States. Since that time I have been engaged continually in the discussion before the people of many states of the Union of the issues emphasized by the convention and repreissues emphasized by the convention and represented by our candidate for president, Grove Cleveland. Opportunity has thus been denied me to write with the care I would like the more formal answer promised to your committee. The full discussion of public questions commonly expected from a candidate for vice president has been rendered less imperative by the complete presentation of the Democratic creed by the gentleman with whom I sion and settlement are so complete that a can do little more than endorse his position

My Unqualified Approval. The greatest power conferred upon human government is that of taxation. All the great struggles of the past for a broader political liberty have looked toward the limitation of this power by right to tax, a right which should always be limited by the necessities of government and to benefits which should be shared by all. Whenever this power is used to draw to the all. Whenever this power is used to draw tribute from the many for the benefit of the few, or when part of the people are oppressed in order that the remainder may prosper unduly, equality is lost sight of, injustice hardens into precedent, which is used to excuse new exact tions, and there arise artificial distinctions which the beneficiaries come to look upon ir due time as vested rights, sacred to them It is plain that our present inequitable system of tariff taxation has promoted the growth of such conditions in our land, favored though it has been by an industrious and intelligent people, a friendly climate, a produc-tive soil and the highest development of polit-ical liberty. There is no longer pretext or ex-

The convention also declared its position or the currency question in no unmeaning words when it said in its platform: "We hold to the age of both gold and silver and the standard macey of the country, and to the coinage of both gold and silver without discriminating against either metal or charge for mintage but the dollar unit of coinage of both metals must heequal intrinsic and exchangeable value. or be adjusted through international agree ment, or by such safeguards of legislation as shall insure the parity of the two metals and the eq all power of every dollar at all times in the markets and in payment of debt, and we demand that all paper money shall be kept at par with and redeemable in such coin."

JOE MANLEY'S ARGUMENT

For Believing That Harrison Will Surely Be Elected. NEW YORK, Oct. 31 .- Joseph H. Manley of Maine, member of the executive com mittee of the Republican national comtittee, said to a Tribune reporter yesterday "I believe President Harrison is to be elected, and I have reasons for this faith. First, never in the history of this country has an administration been changed in the midst of a general business prosperity, and I do not believe this election is perity, and I do not believe this election is to prove an exception to this universal I was in Frankfort attending the court of rule. The it is analyzed it is found to be simply a not receiving party favors. "For the first time in many years, New England will be found solidly in the Re publican ranks. Connecticut is conceded by the shrewdest Democrats to be hopelessly Republican. This state has so prospered under the effects of the McKinlev bill that its electoral vote will be given to the policy which has increased its material wealth and added to its general welfare. In the northwest, when the campaign was started, it was feared that several of the hitherto strong Republican states might be swung into the Democratic column, either directly or indirectly by choosing electors favorable to the Peo ple's party. But after the outrageous treatment of General Weaver in Georgia, and the second sober thought of these people, these states are now safely back, and no danger is to be apprehended from any of the northwestern or Pacific slope

While we do not indulge in any rainbow chasing, and while we do not include in our 216 sure electoral votes a single vote from the south, there are, outside of West Virginia, twenty-two electoral votes in the south that cannot be given to Mr. Cleveland, except by the grossest and most glaring and outrageous states, save alone Nevada. We can count

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Oct. 31.-Governor Fleming, late Saturday night, removed from office Tax Collector J. E. Johnson of this (Duval) county, for the reason that Johnson refused to receive money tendered him in payment of poll taxes on Sept. last. Under the poll tax law the time for qualification of voters, by the payment of taxes, expired on that day. Johnson had previously given public notice that his office would close for business at 1 o'clock, noon. There are two factions in the Democratic party in this county and both had full county tickets in the field. The anti-Ball faction had one of its leaders tender $4000 in payment of the poll taxes of 2000 voters after 12 o'clock, which was refused by the collector.

They have been ever since impurtuning the governor to remove John- materially. The exercises closed with the son, and Saturday he yielded to their resinging of a Swedish hymn, with accomquest. Now, Chairman Harvey of the Third party state committee says that the refusals of tax money after hours on Sept. 3 were common all over the state, and that to be consistent, Governor Fleming will have to remove at least third-five ou of the forty-five county collectors. Johnson will fight the governor's order in the courts. The case will go to the su preme court of appeals, and the supreme court, which is partisan and factional, will sustain Fleming.

A precedent will thus be established, and Harvey will go before congress, when it meets to count the electoral vote, and claim that the action of the governor, backed by the supreme court decision, practically declares that voters were dis-franchised by the thousands by the action have the honor to be associated as a candidate of the national ticket. His treatment of the issues now before the country for discustrational ticket. was no fair expression of the popular will at the polls on that day. The affair has produced a profound sensation here. Democrats generally deplore the action of the governor, declaring that county, he has damaged himself and his whole party, and may cause the throwing out of Florida's vote for Cleveland in the electoral college.

READING NIGHT.

The Editor of the Magazine Comments the Attendance and Politics.

The Quincy literary and debating society held their regular meeting in Doble's hall Alex. Craig occupying the chair.

The business for the evening was "read ings," and four members were previously selected to entertain the meeting. The first gentleman called upon was Mr. Wm. Trayner, who gave a reading upon "Ora- CORRUGATED, tory and the press." The principal point brought out and enlarged upon was, that ity on Nov. 8; and that therefore there of late years the press has gradually superseded the orator in influencing and enlightening the mass of the people. The next reader was Mr. Alex. Soutar who gave an extract from Carlyle's "Hero's in his zeal to hold up his faction in Duval and Hero Worship," "The hero as a man of letters."

Next in order came Dr. McLennan, who gave a good rendering of some passages from the "Giaour" of Lord Byron. Another reader was on the program.

Mr. A. D. Smith, but-he wasn't there. This was all the more to be lamented, in view of the fact that this gentleman had closed on Saturday night, and the figures previously given some hints that his readreached exceed anything in the history of the state. In every city there was a large A. D. can be humorous and original, too, new registration, and in all cases last year's totals were greatly increaced. The annexed table shows the standing of the list when posted in September, the number added, and the final registration. The inal ghost, devil and old soldier story at the society's banquet last April.

However, the readings which WERE given were well received, and the matter and manner of each was criticised and discussed seriatum.

We were very much pleased to see some new members present on this occasion, but the attendance is very far from being all that could be desired. This may partly be on account of the fact that politics is the all time, and a good attendance at anything apart from political meetings is hardly to is just now all powerful. He can abuse the opponents of his party to his heart's 448 content; he can gull working men into the belief that his party is the only one that ever has or ever will legislate for the true benefit of the people. No matter how ab-2,974 surd his promises, or mendacious his assertions, he is listened to and applauded as if he were a patriot and philanthropist, instead of a self-seeking humbug and party

A good many people will be glad when the 8th of November is past and the farce played out. The evenings are being made nideous by a pack of lunatics who parade the streets with drums and torches. The small boys also have caught the fever, and with drums extemporized from old tin cans goods which we have ever carried. they bravely march along, a faithful caricature of the big "small boys" who indulge in the same intelligent sport.

REPUBLICAN PARTY RECORD.

It Is Spread Before Voters by the Independents.

Appeal to Voters of Massachusetts Signed by a List of Noteworthy Names-The Party Attitude Toward Civil Service-The Force Bill-Administration Scandals.

To the Voters of Massachusetts: The approach of the presidential election makes it the duty of every citizen to determine what the interests of his country require at

The national issues growing out of slavery and the war are practically settled. Tariff reduction, civil service reform, honest money and honest elections are the questions of today.

Public PowerUsed for Private Benefit. Underlying and more important than them all, however, is the fundamental question, whether the powers of the government shall be used in the interest of the whole people, or solely for the benefit of the party in power and its supporters. When laws are passed, and the offices or other layors which executive power can bestow are given in payment for political services or for pecuniary contributions to campaign funds, a gigantic system of bribery results, which is sure, unless checked, to endanger the permanence of free government. Shall such a corrupt system be established in this country?

These are the real questions before us, and every citizen who cares more for the welfare of the republic than for the success of any party must take his position upon these, and vote accordingly. He must, like an honest juryman, give his country a true verdict, and not allow his vote to be influenced by his regard for any party or any man.

The tengency of an administration to use the party in power and its supporters.

The tendency of an administration to use for private benefit the powers which it holds in trust for all has been clearly shown by the Republican party under President Harrison, as a brief review of the last few

By Tariff Legislation for a Class. Until 1888 the leaders of that party had cated the policy of gradually reducing the duties on imports. The tariff commission of 1882 was created by the Repubicans to secure such a reduction, and the views of the party were well expressed by views of the party were well expressed by Senator Sherman when he said, in 1872, while the duties on imports were lower than they are today:

"It must be remembered that the present duties, taken together, are far in excess of what hey were be rethe war, and that they have been three times largely increased since the passage of the Morrill tariff act of 1861.

"The result of such duties is to secure to mechanical industries higher wages than can be earned in other kindred employments. Such excessive protection not only ceases to diversify production, but forces labor into protected employments. If the present rates of duty were high enough during and since the war, when home industry was burdened with heavy internal taxes—with stamp duties, income taxes and high rates on raw materials—then, surely, they are now too high when all these taxes are senowed."

taxes and high rates on raw materials—then, surely, they are now too high when all these taxes are removed."

Even in the campaign of 1888 the party promised revision of the tariff, and only asked that the task be committed to its friends. No Republican convention or leader during that campaign suggested that the duties should be enormously increased. Why, then, were the existing duties so generally and so largely raised by the McKinley bill? The reason is not far to seek. To raise campaign funds the Republicans applied to the protected manufacturers for contributions, and in the famous confidential circular, issued on May 25, 1888, by the Republican League of the United States, and not intended for the eye of the workingman, said:

"The campaign which we are about to and not intended for the eye of the workingman, said:

"The campaign which we are about to enter will concern more than anybody else the manufacturers of this country.

If you give us the means to win the victory we will do it. Are you willing?"

They were willing, and the "fat fried out of the manufacturers," if we may quote the graphic phrase of the same circular, was used to elect the Republican candidates, whose supporters in at least one state, were marshalled "in blocks of five" to receive their bribes.

were marshalled "in blocks of five" to receive their bribes.
When the victory was won, those who had vaid for it demanded their share of the spoils, and received it in the form of higher duties. The McKinley act was framed by manufacturers. As the Republican Senator Plumb said: "Whatever the manufacturers have asked in the way of duties, as a rule has been granted." It was their interest which was considered, and many clauses in the bill were framed by them. The result was that for their benefit the enormous duties of the war their benefit the enormous duties of the war were increased, and a heavier burden was laid upon the taxpayer. Is it not clear that the McKinley bill was the use of legisla-tive power to pay for campaign subscrip-tions?

tions?
Similar influences nearly secured the imposition of a duty on hides at the expense of a most important New England industry. If the present campaign returns the Republicans to power, how long will this duty be withheld? duty be withheld?

To secure the votes needed to pass the bill bounties were offered to producers of sugar. Why should any part of the money collected by taxing all the people be paid to farmers who are growing sugar, and not as well to their neighbors who are growing corn.

By Abuse of the Pension System.

Has our pension system been used only to relieve the deserving? Laws have been passed by the Republican party which have increased our annual expenditure for penincreased our annual expenditure for pensions to at least $130,000,000 per year, and the end is not yet. These laws have been so executed by Commissioners Tanner and Raum as to make the administration of the pension office a public scandal. Both the laws and their execution are condemned by self-respecting soldiers throughout the country, but the President has taken no steps to purify the pension office, and ignores the results of the recent investigation which has shown the present commissioner entirely unfit for the place. In return, the commissioner leaves his post of duty and takes the stump in support of the President.

By the Silver Law of 1890. The silver law of 1890, passed by a Republican Congress and defended a year ago by the whole party, though now of its prominent supportsome of its prominent supporters admit its mischievous effects, is another conspicuous instance of using legislative power for private benefit.
Advocated and urged by wealthy mine owners, it used the public money in the purchase of silver which the country did not need, and gave to one class of producers alone the valuable privilege of selling their product to the United States. This legislation has brought the country to the verge of free coinage.

By the Misuse of Patronage. In the administration of the civil service we find the willingness to use the power of the government for partisan and personal ends clearly displayed. No party ever made ends clearly displayed. No party ever made a more solemn pledge to use the power of appointment solely for the public good than did the Republican party when, in the platform upon which President Harrison was elected, it said:

"The men who abandoned the Republican party in 1884, and continued to adhere to the Demccratic party, have deserted not only the cause of honest government, of sound finance, of freedom and purity of the ballot, but especially have deserted the cause of reform in the civilservice. We will not fail to keep our pledges because they have broken theirs, or because their candidate has broken his. We, therefore, renew our declaration of 1884, to wit: 'The reform of the civil service, auspiciously begun under a Republican administration, should be completed by the further extension of the reform system, already established by law, to all the grades of service to which it is applicable. The spirit and purpose of the reform should be observed in all executive appointments, and all laws at variance with the object of the existing reform legislation should be repeated, to the end that the dangers to free institutions which lurk in the power of official patronage may be wisely and effectively avoided."

No man ever made a more distinct personal promise to his countrymen than did President Harrison, in his letter accepting one though the page of the party service should be the gespatial to the party service. In appointments to every grade and department, fitness and not party service should be the essential and discriminating test, and fidelity and efficiency the only

No party and no man ever more openly broke such promises than have the Republican party and President Harrison.

The postmaster-general, who is believed to have received his office in payment for subscriptions to the campaign fund, rather than for any statesmanlike qualities or experience in rubile life, and his notorious assistant, Mr. Clarkson, the only prominent politician of either party who has dared openly to defend the spoils system, in making appointments and removals in the postal service, have applied the rule openly proclaimed by Mr. Wanamaker, that no Democrat should be appointed to or retained in office if a Republican could be found willing to take it, and this has been done with the President's approval and assistance. In pursuance of this rule, 32,325 fourth class postmasters were appointed in 18 months, and during the same period, out of 2617 presidential postmasters, all but 400 were changed. Mr. Pearson of New York, Mr. Hendrix of Brooklyn and Gen. Corse of Bo-ton, three model officers, have been retired, against the express desire of the communities which they served, to make places for Republican politicians.

Corruption in the Indian Service. In the Indian service the same system was adopted, and the offices, created for the purpose of securing the proper per-formance of our country's fluty to its un-happy wards, were given to the senators from the new states as a reward for past or the price of future political support. This was done against the protest of every friend of the Indians, and it resulted in the general demoralization of the service and the disgraceful Indian outbreak at Pine Ridge, which cost the country more in money and honor than years of faithful administration can restore. The public feeling which this outbreak created compelled the President to place the physi-cians, school superintendents, teachers and the purpose of securing the proper percians, school superintendents, teachers and matrons of the Indian service, a small per-cent-ge of the total force, under the civil service rules; but the other places, the most numerous and valuable pieces of spoil, are still reserved to be used as politi spoil, are still test. cal bribes. The Census Bureau.

The responsible duty of taking the census devolved upon this administration, and the civil service comission, whose appointment all civil service reformers cordially apall civil service reformers cordially approved, recommended that the officers charge i with the important duty of collecting and tabulating the facts should be selected by the merit system. This reasonable request was ignored; in open disregard of the promises both of President and party, the offices in the census bureau were distributed as spoils, and the result is a census compiled at enormous expense, but notoriously unreliable, and a buleau only second to the pension office in its administrative scandals.

The Press Subsidized.

In the diplomatic and consular service, appointments have evidently been made in payment for editorial support, and in this, as in every branch of the public service, the attempt to subsidize the press has vice, the attempt to subsidize the press has been notarious. As illustrations we may recall Whitelaw Reid of the New York Tribune, sent as minister to France; Murat Halstead of the Cincinnati Commercial Gazette, nominated as minister to Germany; Allen Thorndike Rice of the North American Review and Charles Emory Smith of the Philadelphia Press, named in succession for the Russian mission; W. R. Sperry of the Wilmington Morning News, appointed minister to Persia. Our consul general at Lonnon is John C. New of the Indianapolis Journal, whose return from his post to lead the President's forces at Minneapolis shows his sense of obligation; the superintendent of the census is Robert P. Porter of the New York Press; the first assistant postmaster-general was J. S. Clarkson of the Iowa State Register, and a host of other offices, too numerous to mention, have been filled by editors. Of such appointments Daniel Webster said in 1832: "An open attempt to secure the aid and friendship of the public press by bestowing the emoluments of office on its active conductors seems to me, of everything we have witnessed, to be the most reprehensible. It degrades both the government and the press." government and the press."

In every department of the government, except the navy department, the spoils system has been shamelessly enforced.

Public Office for Private Ends. In Virginia the whole federal patronage of the state was placed in the hands of Mahone during the first year of the administration, and contributions to his campaign fund were openly solicited in the administration, and contributions to his campaign fund were openly solicited in the departments at Washington in violation of law, without provoking any rebuke from the President or any earnest attempt to punish the offenders, who were retained in office while under indictment, and who used this fact in defence at their trial.

Not only has the patronage been used to reward services to the Republican party, but to strengthen the President himself against his opponents within that party. The activity of office-holders in conventions and caucuses, which had ceased under President Cleveland, has again become general. Why was Mr. Erhardt, collector of New York, displaced? Why were officers removed in Philadelphia for supporting Mr. Blaine in Republican caucuses? Why did the consul-general at London leave his important post and return to lead the friends of the President in convention? How was it that in a convention of 900 delegates at least 140 were office-holders appointed by the President, while nearly 3000 others were present in the gallery and corridors to aid him in the contest which he was himself conducting by wire from the White House? Why was a colored delegate to that convention appointed postmaster of Charleston, and why was his nomination withdrawn? Why are the officers, whose action in Baltimore led the chairman of the civil service commission, after thorough investigation, to recommend their dismissal, still retained? The facts cannot be controverted; and so clear has been the violation of the sole and promises which we have quoted that the Republican party did not dare in its present platform to repeat the arrogant language of four years ago, but contented itself with saying:

"We commend the spirit and evidence of four in the civil service contented itself with saying:

self with saying:

"We commend the spirit and evidence of reform in the civil service and the wisa and consistent enforcement by the Republican party of the laws regulating the says." hean party of the laws regulating the same."

No honorable man can read Mr. Harrison's letter of four years ago and compare it with his conduct since without drawing the inevitable conclusion that the President has been indifferent to the promise by which he secured the votes of many reformers. Of what consequence are any assurances which he may give his countrymen? If such a deplorable breach of faith is to be condoned the consequences to the country will be disastrous. No severer blow can be dealt the cause of civil service reform than the re-election of such a man.

Public Office a Public Trust.

Public Office a Public Trust. It is true that Mr. Cleveland, while in office, violated the principles of civil service reform in conspicuous cases, and these we have no disposition to conceal or palli-vice reform in conspicuous cases, and these we have no disposition to conceal or palliate. For this reason many ardent advocates of that reform, who supported him in 1884, voted for Mr. Harrison in 1888, trusting in the professions of the Republican platform and the promises of its candidate. The record of the present administration has led them again to support Mr. Cleveland.

Whatever Mr. Cleveland's short-comings, no power of his was ever used to advance his personal fortunes, 2 Against a consulgeneral recalled from London and 140 office holders in the nominating convention, working for their chief, we place President Cleveland's proclamation of July 14, 1886, which forbade federal office-holders to exert any influence in caucuses and conventions or to assume the active conduct of political campaigns, and the following extract from the letter written by Secretary Bayard in 1888 to Minister Jarvis of Brazil, who had asked permission to come home and take part in the political canvas: "I can only say that I do not believe the President would look with favor upon your doing so while holding office under his administration. It has been, and still is, his purpose to give the people of the United States an absolutely honest and just administration, and to leave them free at the end of his term to express themselves for or against the record so made, without official interference or instruction." In the Republican convention there was a contest between a President, who was using the public patronage to renominate himself, and certain spoilsmen who wished to employ it for their own benefit. In the Democratic convention it was a contest between the people and the spoilsmen.

The McKinley bill, the silver bill of 1890, the subsidies, the bounties, the pension law, the abusa of patronage are evidence that the Republican party and its candidates use their power for private and not for public ends, and against such breaches of trust it is our first duty to protest by speech and by vote. For this reason, if no other, we urge our fellow-chizens to vote for Mr. Cleveland.

The Issues. We believe in the reduction of the tariff on imports, and upon this question Mr. Cleveland represents our views, while President Harrison represents extreme protection.

We believe in the reform of the civil service, and we find in the absolute disregard of solemn promises, and in the open use of patronage for party and personal ends by President Harrison. ample assurance that this reform will be delayed by his election, and good reason for condemning his course by the only argument which such politicians feel—defeat at the polls.

We believe that Mr. Cleveland will be able and willing to apply the principles, in which we are sure he honestly believes, that "the people's employes whose duties are not affected by a change of political policy can be displaced for cause only, and not for political opinion."

and Silver Question. As believers in sound money we cannot close our eyes to the fact that the agitation for tree silver under the present administration was begun when the Republican convention, in 1888, adopted the following plank:

"The Republican party is in favor of the use of both gold and silver as money, and condemns the policy of the Democratic administration in its attempts to demonetize ministration in its attempts to demonstize silver."

We well remember the speech of Mr. Mc-Kinley at To-edo in February, 1891, in which he said:
"During all of his (Cleveland's) years as the head of the government he was dishonoring one of our precious metals, one of our own great products, discrediting silver and enhancing the price of gold.
"He endeavored, even before his inauguration, to stop the coinage of silver dollars, and afterwards, and to the end of his administration, persistently used his power to that end.

administration, persistently used his power to that end.

"He was determined to contract the circulating medium, and demonetize one of the coins of commerce, limit the volume of money among the people, make money scarce, and, therefore, dear.

"He would have increased the value of money and diminished the value of everything else—money the master, everything else the servant."

We cannot forget the argument of the Republican leaders that the act of 1890 was passed to prevent the passage of a free silver bill, an argument which could not have been made if President Harrison's determination to yet such a bill had been as per bill, an argament which could not have been made if President Harrison's determination to veto such a bill had been as clear as Mr. Cleveland's has always been. We know that both parties contain friends of silver, and that members of both are entitled to credit for the recent defeat of a free silver bill, but the Democratic opponents of free silver fought for their faith and triumphed in 1892, while the Republican opponents of this dangerous heresy voted for the act of 1890. The Republican convention adopted a declaration which is of doubtful interpretation, and which is satisfactory to the most pronounced friends of free silver, who were invited to share in framing this part of the platform, while the Democratic convention voted down a free silver, who were invited to share in framing this part of the platform, while the Democratic convention voted down a free silver plank, and declared its opposition to dishonest money in language not to be misunderstood. In the Democratic party the friends of free silver have been defeated, and its candidate is a man who has never swerved from his outspoken opposition to all legislation which tends to debase the standard of value. The Republican party palters with the question, and seeks to win votes from both sides, while the chairman of its national committee advocates the free coinage of silver. Wille neither party is united on this question, Mr. Cleveland's position is clear and strong, and upon him we can rely.

On the issue of honest elections neither party commands our confidence. Gerry mandering, bribery and violence have been practised in different states by both, and the remedy is to be sought mainly in the states themselves. We are earnestly opposed, however, to the election law proposed by the Republicans in the last-Congress, which gave the President the power to control the organization of Congress though an army of persons appointed as partisans to decide in the first instance the delicate questions which arise in contested elections. Such a law strikes at the root of constitutional government, and could not fail to be the parent of the grossest abuses and gravest disturbances. To this bill President Harrison and the Republican leaders an Congress gave their warmest support, and the last Republican convention again pledged the party to attempt its passage. We are told that the President, disregarding this pledge, amnounces his purpose to abandon the bill, but we remember his promise of civil service reform, and ask again of what importance are any assurances that he can give. Regarding the measure as an attempt to use the power of legislation for partisan purposes, and believing that its passage would be a national calamity, we see in the position of the Republican leaders on this question another reason for casting ourvotes for Mr. Cleveland. mandering, bribery and violence have question another reason for casting our-votes for Mr. Cleveland.

Harrison's Administration. Nor do we feel that President Harrison has given us a wise and creditable administration of the government.

The state department has had to deal with the Barrandia matter in Guatemala, with Chili and with Great Britain. In neither case has its course been such as is worthy of a great nation earnestly seeking to live in peace with its neighbors, and to deal with such questions as must inevitably arise in the spirit of courtesy and mutual respect which should charactrize dealings between nations as between men. In every instance there has been too much reason to suppose that the President had in view the possibility of winning votes by appealing to the prejudices and passions of his more inconsiderate countrymen rather than the responsibility and duty of giving this powerful republic its proper place among the lorces which work for peace among men.

The indecent haste with which the President signed the Chinese exclusion bill, whose provisions violated a solemn treaty with China, which branded our colored fellow-citizens by providing that their testimony should not be sufficient under this law to establish facts, and which was in direct contradiction of the views which the President Immself had expressed on the hoof of the Senate, was, in our opinion, a pusillanimous surrender of his country's honor and his own convictions for the purpose of securing votes from the citizens of the Pacific states.

The foreign policy of President Harrison is surely and the contradiction of the purpose of securing votes from the citizens of the Pacific states. The state department has had to deal the Senate, was, in our opinion, a pusillanimous surrender of his country's honor and his own convictions for the purpose of securing votes from the citizens of the Pacific states.

The foreign policy of President Harrison is well described by Theodore S. Woolsey, the eminent professor of international law,
who, speaking as a jurist and not as a partisan, says:

"It means in the first place a departure from the old and safe policy of the fathers.
It means courting rather than avoiding foreign entanglements. It means one collision after another, each with its sulphurous, war cloud about it. It means the violation of former precedents, setting up new ones in their stead, which may prove awkward, even dangerous. It will encourage aggressions upon weak neighbors. It will make this country hated and distrusted by its natural friends. It will weaken its com mercial position in the continent, throwing trade into channels other than our own."

The postoffice department under Wanamaker and Clarkson, the pension office under Tanner and Raum, the Indian service, as manned by Republican partisans, the census bureau under Porter Ido not excite our admiration, while they remind us how completely the promise of civil service reform has been broken.
The war department under Stephen
B. Elkins of Star route notoriety provokes an inquiry into the past history of the secretary, which makes it impossible to account for his selection on any grounds which are creditable to President Harrison.
Neither the attitude of his administration upon great questions of policy, like the tariff, the currency, the pension system and the federal election laws, nor the steps by which he has secured renomination, command our respect. We have seen the power of appointment used to benefit relatives, to pay campaign debts, to reward supporters, to punish opponents, to finfluence the press, to secure a renomination, but rarejy with an eye single to the public good. We feel that such an administration should be condemned.
